Boards Unanimous; Members To Vote This Month

Inter-State, Lehigh Approve Merger

SOUTHAMPTON — The Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative and Lehigh Valley Farmers boards of directors have approved plans to merge the two cooperatives to form "Atlantic Dairy Cooperative."

The proposal to merge was unanimously endorsed by both boards of directors at a joint meeting on Oct. 22. The plan now awaits final vote by the membership of both cooperatives. If approved, the merger would become effective Feb. 1, 1987.

Inter-State president Robert B. McSparran, left, and Lehigh president Alpheus Ruth give the "go" to a proposal to merge the two cooperatives.

In announcing their plans, Inter-State and Lehigh report a mutual benefit for all members. Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, they contend, will achieve greater operating savings and increased marketing efficiency. The result will be a higher return to members.

"The merger proposal offers many advantages to both Inter-State and Lehigh members," said Alpheus Ruth, Lehigh president. "The most important are the savings and efficiency resulting from a closer working relationship."

According to initial estimates, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative will realize annual operating savings of nearly $1 million as a direct result of the Inter-State-Lehigh merger. This is achieved by streamlining marketing and transportation programs.

"The merger plan focuses on the market and production strengths of each cooperative," said Inter-State president Robert B. McSparran. "It places us, as Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, in a stronger, more competitive position in the marketplace."

Under the proposal:

- Atlantic Dairy Cooperative will be headquartered at Southampton, where Inter-State is currently located.
- Cooperative dues will be 12 cents per hundredweight.
- The capital retain program will be ended for all Atlantic members who have over four years of membership in either Inter-State, Lehigh or Atlantic.
- All Atlantic equities will be placed on a five-year revolving plan. Former Inter-State and

Auctions Beef About Checkoff Program

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — With a month's-worth of the beef checkoff program under their belts, livestock auctions are bracing themselves for the second wave of paperwork with the startup of the national pork checkoff today.

Both programs are mandated by farm bill '85, and both are producer financed. The two differ somewhat in their per-head assessments and their implementation. While the beef checkoff is a standard $1-per-head fee, pork producers will be contributing one-quarter of one percent on the gross amount received from all hogs sold.

Beef funds are collected by the state beef councils and 50 percent of the money is sent to the national Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board. The National Pork Board will be collecting all pork checkoff monies and refunding a percentage to the state pork councils based on the number of head they market. The more hogs a state produces, the lower their return percentage will be.

Both programs offer refunds to producers not wishing to participate. Whether or not beef producers receive their refunds is contingent upon the outcome of a producer referendum to be held after the program has been in force for 22 months. On the other hand, pork producer refund requests will be honored regardless of the outcome of a pork referendum. The pork referendum must be held within 24 to 30 months from the program's Nov. 1 startup date.

Both programs are grounded in the premise that more dollars for promotion means greater consumer demand, which in turn leads to higher red meat prices. While the farming community seems ripe to embrace the concept, its birth has proven to be a bit painful, particularly for the auction houses charged with collecting the funds from livestock sellers.

"All these programs are putting a tremendous burden on the auctions," says Jim DeGaetano, president of Carlisle Livestock Market, and past president of the Pennsylvania Livestock Association. "The thing I resent is that they come up with these programs and then they expect the auction barns to do all the work."

DeGaetano is particularly miffed about a form called the "Certificate of Non-Producer Status." The form's purpose is to avoid reassessing cattle that are being resold within 10 days of the first purchase.

"The form is very poorly written," DeGaetano says, pointing out that the document should be simplified. There also seems to be a distribution problem, he says. "If the sellers have an exemption certificate, they don't have to pay again, but the sellers aren't getting these forms."

Another bone of contention seems to be the beef checkoff's per-head charge. "I think it's way too high on those calves," says DeGaetano. Illustrating his point, he notes that an average 60-pound veal calf may bring 30 cents a pound for a total of $18. Of that

Farmers Tour Local Businesses

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER — This year the farmers visited ag-related businesses on the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry Tour sponsored by their ag committee. Often the community is invited to take a tour to the farm. But on Thursday morning more than 50 people left the Farm and Home Center on a bus headed for Lancaster Laboratories, Inc., on New Holland Pike and Victor Weaver, Inc., in New Holland.

At Lancaster Labs, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hess, founder of the growing testing laboratory, hosted and welcomed the group. Hess said the response to the chamber tour showed the kind of commonality that business and farming have in this area.

The firm was started 25 years ago as a place for "a chemist in private practice," Hess said. "Our business grew out of my farm background experience and allowed us to start small and grow with a family type operation much like farmers do. Even now with 185 employees, we consider ourselves an extended family. Though I must admit, it gets harder to know everybody personally as the employee number grows."

Hess listed several business principles he thinks are very important.

1. Delivery a high quality product with a personal touch
2. Know what your product input costs are and make a reasonable profit. Only with a profitable business can you expect to grow.
3. Make no compromise on integrity and honesty when dealing

Wismer Re-elected State Grange Master

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

READING — At the four-day Pennsylvania State Grange convention here this week, Charles E. Wismer, Jr., was re-elected for a two-year term as master of the State Grange. Wismer was first elected master in 1979 and re-elected in 1980, 1982 and again in 1984 to two-year terms. He has been active on the local, county and state levels of the Grange for more than 30 years. Wismer's efforts on behalf of the State Grange, first as legislative chairman then as master, were largely responsible for many legislative victories for the Pennsylvania farmers. During his term as master Wismer has also introduced many new services into the Grange such as a food cooperative, a credit union and an insurance program. Wismer is a dairy farmer in Montgomery County.

One of the featured speakers at the Grange meeting was Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Grubb. Secretary Grubb used the occasion to announce a major initiative by the Pennsylvania State Department to promote export sales of Pennsylvania food products in European markets. Grubb said the Department of Agriculture will lead nine Pennsylvania food companies to Berlin in January to participate in International Green Week.

Pennsylvania foods will be displayed to a half million visitors

POULTRY MARKETS

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Oct. 30, 1986

Market Comment: movement of ready to cook whole birds was a bit disappointing in some quarters but generally noted as sufficient to keep offerings clearing satisfactorily. Supplies of cutlets and rib breasts were in good overall balance, and prices were somewhat steadier today. Linerun breasts were in closest balance. Wings continued to clear well while leg meat was at least adequate for prompt delivery. Less than truck lot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 62 cents. Live supplies were moderate to occasionally moderately heavy. Weights continued mixed in a full range. Slaughter schedules were just moderate with a few plants noting down-time on Friday. The undertone was about steady.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 10/30 1,852,000; Actual 10/23 1,747,000.

Actual 10/28 1,852,000.

Average Weights 10/28 4.45, 10/21 4.44.

Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, Oct. 30, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices continued to edge higher. Trade sentiment was at least fully steady at most points. Cartoned movement was mixed but generally good, particularly where retail featuring was planned or in progress. Some orders were noted as better as buyers took additional product for the upcoming first of the month period earlier than normal in an effort to stay ahead of advancing prices. Breaker interest remained quite active, and some sellers viewed movement as gradable offering to breakers as tightening available supplies for consumer use. Farm offerings were generally light and often limited to small volumes. Graded stocks were in good balance to closely cleared.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door: A Extra Large 69-77; A Large 67-75; A Medium 53-62.

Ask the Old Farmer: I just read a book in which "fool's apple" is mentioned as growing wild along the east coast Do you recall any wild tree or fruit by this name? E N , Reading, Penn

Sometimes called Dead Sea apple, or apple of Sodom it grows on a prickly shrub and looks like a yellow tomato, we suspect it makes for poor eating Some folks also call the oak apple "fool's apple"

OPINION

Farm/City Week Gets People Together

Last week a local shopping mall got a head start on Farm/City Week. Farm animals from a cow to chicks, piglets and ducks, yes even turkeys spent the week in the mall. These good-will representatives for farming were talked to and petted by hundreds of shoppers.

Several children with their mother were overheard to express great anticipation about the farm animals as they entered a store from the parking lot. This anticipation was expressed before they even entered the mall. Obviously, the news had been published, and this family was responding with anticipation to the animals they were about to see.

Of course, the mall reportedly has an increase in business when the farm animals come to town. But the important aspect of this happening to us is the relationship that is forged between rural people and urban people. We depend on each other for products and services that are essential to modern business and living. Today's farmer relies upon the skills and abilities of a vast number of specialists to assist him in his job of providing food and fiber for the nation. He could not operate for one week if these services were not available. Likewise, the businesses which serve agriculture could not exist without the farmer. And the consumers they serve couldn't last a week without the output of these two groups.

Actually, the State Farm/City Week kicks off in November when the Franklin County Farm/City Council will host the State Farm/City Kickoff Banquet at 6 p.m. Tuesday on the 11th at the campus of Wilson College in Chambersburg. The county agricultural commodity queens will serve light refreshments. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m., and Dr. Richard Grubb, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, will be the keynote speaker at the banquet.

Each year local, state and national farm/city councils sponsor a Farm/City Week, which begins the Friday before Thanksgiving and continues through Thanksgiving day. The purpose of the week is to help create an understanding of the problems faced mutually by rural and urban residents. Farm/City Week is sponsored by a statewide committee of 50 organizations in cooperation with the National Farm/City Council Incorporated.

Membership on the committee includes representives from government, business, industry and agriculture. Annually the State Farm City Council recognizes the top three counties in the commonwealth for their promotional and educational activities in implementing farm city events. Franlkin County was the first place winner in 1985. The first place county award recipient hosts the State Kickoff Farm/City Banquet each year. The other county winners were second place Lebanon Farm/City Council and third place Berks County Farm/City Council. The recipient of the organization award was a Pennsylvania District of Kawanis International.

Our hats are off to the winners of the Farm City Week promotions. And we would encourage everyone to get involved with this worthy project this year. These activities provide a great place to bring people together.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Prevent Pneumonia

As temperature and weather conditions vary considerably from day to day and from hour to hour, precautions need to be taken to prevent pneumonia. Pneumonia causing organisms are normally present in the respiratory tract, but under periods of stress an animal's resistance can be lowered to the point where it can no longer fight off the infection. So, it's important to minimize stress on animals.

Keep barns well ventilated, but avoid cold drafts. This may require frequent adjustment of doors and windows, or the proper installation and use of fans. Good ventilation prevents the buildup of stagnant, moist germ-laden air. That's important! Also avoid overcrowding. During inclement and rapidly changing weather conditions, one should also minimize stresses associated with transporting animals, weaning, changing feeds, deworming, vaccinating, etc. When necessary, consult your veterinarian for advice on immunization and treatment.

To Be Aware of Spring Pigweed in Pastures

An annual summer and fall weed we see increasing in farm pastures is the thorn covered redroot or pigweed. The weed is a first cousin of our common redroot – except this one has spines on it. No animal eats it for obvious reasons. Spiny pigweed grows freely in too many pastures, causing considerable loss in grass production in our county.

The weed can easily be seen. It appears red all over, particularly the stem, in the fall. Touch the plant – carefully – and you will come in contact with the horrible spines. Grazing animals avoid it, 100 percent.

Spring pigweed can easily be controlled by Banvel or 2,4-D Ester applied in late May and early June when in its seedling stage. A second herbicide application likely will be needed as a cleanup to get late germinating weed seeds. Mowing the pasture helps, but the weeds will always recover.

Unless we soon obtain control of this bad weed, it will get into our hay fields.

To Check Stand-By Generators

The winter season brings with it snow and ice storms that can damage and knock out our supply of electricity. Most farmers are badly crippled without electricity, so the need for a stand-by generator is recognized. I know that many poultry farms in particular already have this equipment. However, if the generator is not in good working condition, it may not do the job in case of emergency.

These generators should be run once a week to reassure yourself that they are in good running condition. If it is a tractor hookup type, take the time to make that connection each week. When the power goes off, you don't have time to run tests of the equipment to make sure it's in proper working order.

To Be Careful With Space Heaters

Colder weather is here and we see many types of heating equipment being used. Most of these are quite acceptable provided they are properly used and vented. In some cases the fumes from the fuel can be the cause of suffocation and personal injury; in other cases they can be a fire hazard. If temporary heaters are used; we suggest extreme care be used to be certain they do not make people ill or present a health hazard. Your local fire department officials, or a local plumber, will be able to give additional assistance. Don't take chances with the health of your family or your employees.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE "ALSO" FACTOR
November 2, 1986

Background Scripture: 2 Kings 17.
Devotional Reading: Hosea 4:1-6.

In a day and age in which many Christians are able to recognize that other religious traditions often represent other paths to the same God, it may seem that the story in 2 Kings 17 is sadly out of step. For the writer makes it very apparent that Israel's demise is directly attributable to their divided loyalties between the Lord and other gods. For this reason, "the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them out of his sight" (17:18).

SINS OF JEROBOAM

One could easily draw the conclusion that other religions have no truth in them and that God tolerates only one faith, all others being an abomination calling for suppression and destruction. Yet, I'm not convinced that that conclusion is necessary. Whenever in the Old Testament God warns against other religions, it appears it is the moral results of those beliefs, not the theologies themselves that he is opposing. The Sepharvites burned their children as sacrifices to Adrammelech and Anammelech. The Canaanites indulged in sacred prostitution. The Assyrians set up idols. And so on — the religions of Israel's neighbors were wrong, not because they were alternative routes to the same God, but because they produced a kind of morality that could never lead to the God of Israel.

Much of the problem with Israel is attributable to Jeroboam. When he and the 10 northern tribes split away from the tyrant Rehoboam and the two southern tribes of David, the writer of 2 Kings tells us that he "made them commit great sin" (17:21). It was this sin that eventually caused the downfall of Israel, ending in the dreadful Assyrian captivity.

FEAR NO OTHER GODS

Actually, it was not that they utterly and totally rejected the Lord of Israel, for as the writer says, "They also feared the Lord . . ." (17:32), but it is the world "also" that was their undoing. "So they feared the Lord but also served their own gods . . ." (17:33). Like many people today their religion was eclectic, borrowing a little bit here and a little bit there. It didn't occur to them to ask whether their various practices could be harmonious with the commandments of the Lord.

Today then, as always, the question is not merely whether we believe in God, but whether we are content to live in ways that are harmonious with that belief.

The Hisex White and Brown Layers:

Compare the production and feed efficiency of the Hisex White and Hisex Brown layers and you won't find any better, anywhere. And that is a condition that will continue since Hisex research and development keeps improving the breed.

But mere test figures don't tell the whole story. The fact is that good henhouse managers can beat these figures. Hisex field testing has proven that. You may well obtain better feed conversion, mortality, and higher production.

As in all things, you must start with a good, basic product. The good genes, in other words.

See for yourself. Put these great birds to work for you soon You'll find their average performance produces above average results.

Milk Co-ops

Lehigh equities will be revolved back to their respective members on an accelerated plan.

• A two-tier quality premium program has been developed. Qualifying members will be paid either a 10-cent or 20-cent per hundredweight premium based on the quality of their milk.

Overall, Atlantic is expected to generate initital annual earnings of 15 cents per hundredweight, or over $5 million. Milk volumes are estimated at over 3.5 billion pounds annually.

This volume of milk would be produced by approximately 4,264 dairy farmers — the combined membership of Inter-State and Lehigh. Currently, Inter-State's membership totals 3,004 and Lehigh, 1,260.

During the next three weeks, Inter-State and Lehigh representatives will meet with their respective members to discuss details of the merger proposal. A final vote is expected by Nov. 19.

Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative represents over 3,000 dairy farm families in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. Lehigh Valley Farmers, headquarterd in Bethlehem, represents over 1,200 members in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

Hay As A Cash Crop

During the past several weeks, as a result of the drought that plagued the south last summer, no agricultural commodity has received more attention in the press than hay. Hay, that often neglected second cousin farm crop, moved into the south by truckloads and trainloads - thousands and thousands of tons of hay from all over the U.S. to feed starving livestock that otherwise may have been lost. And, certainly, Pennsylvania hay producers played a big role in making their hay available for this purpose.

Big Business

Hopefully as a result of this catastrophy someone has gotten the message. Hay is the one forage crop that can be transported from one area to another. And hay is big business. In 1985, for example, the nation's hay producers harvested nearly 150 million tons of hay from over 60 million acres. Its value - nearly $11 billion.

And today hay, especially alfalfa hay, is potentially one of the best cash crops availble on many northeastern farms.

How Hay is Sold

New methods of marketing hay have made selling hay easier, too. Visual inspection, to be sure, is still the most common method of assessing quality and price when either selling or buying. But the development of new rapid methods of measuring quality such as Near Infrared Reflectance Spectroscopy (NIRS) is sure to have a major impact on marketing hay in the year ahead.

Hay dealers or brokers, of course, are still major suppliers. In some areas more hay is being marketed through co-ops. And in several states special computer assisted marketing systems designed to help growers find buyers and to help buyers locate hay, have been developed.

But the big increase in marketing hay in many areas is through hay auctions. Originally, as was and still is true for Pennsylvania hay auctions, this method simply brought together the producer with loads of hay, an auctioneer, and a group of prospective buyers. Hay was sold by visual inspection and the price determined by supply and demand.

Quality Tested Hay Auctions

But in Wisconsin and Minnesota, where hay auctions are relatively recent, a new approach is being used. And it has come about because of the introduction of NIRS equipment, usually in mobile units, as a rapid method of measuring hay quality prior to sale, plus the grading of hay according to the results. Wisconsin forage specialist Dwayne Rohweder calls these "quality tested hay auctions" and, according to Rohweder, this new approach means "Wisconsin hay producers may finally be getting paid for quality in the cash market."

The hay grading system used in Wisconsin and Minnesota auctions is a revision of the one proposed by the American Forage and Grassland Council several years ago. It includes a new term, relative feed value (RFU), which is a value developed from acid detergent fiber (ADF) and neutral detergent fiber (NDF) tests and compares one forage to another based on feed value and predicted intake.

National Alfalfa Hay Quality Standards

Another recent development in hay marketing was the development of national alfalfa hay quality standards, their intent: to have uniform testing throughout the U.S. so both seller and buyer can receive accurate and interpretable results on any given lot of hay.

Obviously for these standards to work standardized procedures for sampling and testing hays are a must. And standardized procedures have been developed by a National Alfalfa Hay Quality Committee. A voluntary laboratory certification program operated by the National Alfalfa Hay Test Association in conjunction with AFGC and the National Hay Association is also in place.

Not all of the problems have been solved. But progress has been made in hay marketing, and with continued efforts on the part of many individuals and organizations hay will eventually receive the attention it deserves in the market place.

Adams 4-H Dairy Club Celebrates 40th Anniversary

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

HEIDLERSBURG – Over 150 of the Club's past and present members and their families filled the Heidlersburg Firehall for the 22nd Annual Banquet and the 40th Anniversary of the Adams County 4-H Dairy Calf Club. The banquet culminated eight months of planning by Club members with Kathy Todt, Centennial, serving as banquet chairman and Club President Jennifer Weimer, New Oxford, serving as the Mistress of Ceremonies.

Prior to the start of the meal, guests had the opportunity to browse and socialize with other members of their club days. Club scrapbooks, old photographs, and other club memorabilia were also on display.

County Extension Director Tom Piper and Tom Murren, Club Leader for the past 38 years, provided the narration for a slide show, which followed the meal. The slide set contained a mixture of shots showing the Club's programs, activities, shows and dairy princess contests over the past four decades.

Highlighting the evening was the presentation of club awards. Jennifer Weimer capped off her year as club president by being named the club's outstanding senior member. This is the fourth consecutive year that Weimer has won this distinction. She is presently serving as the 1986 Adams County Dairy Princess.

The outstanding junior member award for 1986 went to Matthew Guise, York Springs. To be eligible for this award, a member must be in their first or second year of project work and have the highest completed project score of all those eligible.

The showmanship and fitting awards won at the 1986 Adams County 4-H Round-up were also presented. Each receiving a leather calf halter provided by Atlantic Breeders Cooperative were Matthew Guise, champion mini-showman, and Mark Clowney, reserve champion mini-showman. Receiving rosettes for their efforts were: Jennifer Weimer, champion showman, Jennifer Hess, reserve champion showman, David Smith, champion fitter, and Jennifer Weimer, reserve champion fitter.

The breed champions also received their champion rosettes at this time. The winners were: senior champion Holstein, Denton Guise; reserve senior champion Holstein, Jennifer Weimer; junior champion Holstein, Jennifer Weimer; reserve junior champion Holstein, Jennifer Weimer.

Also honored were: junior champion Jersey, Daniel Yingling; reserve junior champion Jersey, Kathy Reever; and junior and reserve junior Brown Swiss, Joy Hess.

Three individuals received the Club's Special Award rosettes for project book scores in the top 10 percent of all project books scored. This year's awards were presented to Jennifer Weimer, Christine Todt and Janet Ludwig.

Pete Daughter Tops New Holland Sale

NEW HOLLAND — There were two top animals at the New Holland Sales Stable Annual Dairy Show and Sale, one for the show and one for the sale.

Show judge John Morris, Frederick, Md., picked a 3 year old shown by Kirk Lehman, Bloomsburg, as grand champion of the show. The Hostetter family, Annville, judged a 2-year-old Pete daughter worthy of the top price of the sale, $5,500.

Consigned by David and Norman Kolb, Lancaster, the sale topper freshened at the beginning of September and produced 87 pounds of 3.7 milk at the end of September. Her dam, a VG-86 Astronaut daughter, produced three records over 20,000 pounds of milk, peaking at 27,180 pounds.

The second dam scored EX-91 and the next three dams scored Very Good.

Close behind in the bidding, and near the top in speculation for the highest bid by sale spectators, was a just fresh 2 year old. Consigned by Stonehurst Farms, Strasburg, the Warden daughter was purchased by Sandy Thomas, Willow Street.

Her dam classified VG-85 and produced four records over 22,000 milk. The next dam scored VG-87 and posted a best effort of 27,014 milk and 989 fat in 365 days.

The grand champion of the sale sold for $4,450, the fourth high price of the sale. Consigned by David Kolb and Kirk and Melvin Lehman, Bloomsburg, she was purchased by Bob Morrell, Cochranton, and Ron Roskopf, Germantown, Wis. Lehmans originally bought the champion from Morrell at the 1985 edition of this sale.

The Nobel Dutch daughter freshen at the beginning of September and produced 100 pounds of milk on the day of the show. Classified VG-86, she also claimed best fresh udder honors and measures 61 inches at the withers.

A Triple Threat daughter claimed the reserve champion honors of the show after placing first in the mixed breeds dry class.

However, the 60 inch tall, 3-year-old cow re-entered the sale ring and sold fresh. Consigned by Dennis Kolb, Lancaster, the reserve champion freshened with a C Romandale Jasper-Red calf within a half-hour of the time she was sold. The John Peila family of Manchester, Conn., purchased the cow for $3,650.

Her calf sold for $475 to Don Welk, Strasburg.

Abe Diffenbach, Alvin Horning and Lloyd Kreider auctioneered the sale.

$36,000 Bid Tops Fran-Lou First Edition Sale

LANCASTER — Fran-Lou Morning Rose-ET was in full bloom on Tuesday and attracted the top price of the Fran-Lou First Edition Sale.

The Roybrook Tempo daughter sold for $36,000 to John Baker of Canada. Baker edged out contending bidder Hartmann Farms of Dundee, Ill., for the right to select between Rose and Fran-Lou Melia-ET; both animals are out of the Fran-Lou Meadow cow.

Baker's choice is a sixth generation Excellent. Her in progress 4-year-old record stands at 22,694 pounds of milk and 829 pounds of fat in 250 days.

Four maternal sisters produced records over 21,000 pounds of milk; six maternal sisters classified Excellent or Very Good.

Her dam, Fran-Lou Meadow, classified Excellent-2E and was sired by Paclamar Astronaut. She produced a top record of 27,576 pounds of milk and 1,210 pounds of fat in 365 days.

Rose sold open and with two Tempo pregnancies from Meadow including a guarantee of one heifer.

Pintail Point Farm, Queenstown, Md., paid an even $10,000 to own the second high seller, Valiant Cornflower. Sired by Valiant and out of the Carnation Arl Corry A-ET cow, she will freshen in November with a Ned Boy calf.

Corry is a Very Good Glendell Arlinda Chief daughter. She sold for $40,000 in the Dogwood B.C. Sale. Her index stands at plus 1,224 milk and plus 54 fat with a best effort of 26,838 pounds of milk and 1,052 pounds of fat.

The next six dams classified Excellent and produced records over 20,000 pounds of milk. The second dam, Diamond-S Eve Corry, produced a top record of 38,590 pounds of milk and 1,350 pounds of fat.

Eight animals sold over the $5,000 level. The sale averaged $2,768 on 73 head.

This sale marked the first sale in several years for Fran-Lou Holsteins, according to owner Ray Edwards. and the first sale in the Lancaster area. This sale also marked the first sale for Backus Associates at the Mel Kolb Dairy Sales Barn.

Ray Edwards congratulates Elvin Kurtz, winner of the two frozen embryos by Melvin and from "Meadow."

Edwards noted that originally he was hoping the sale could be held at the Guernsey Sale Barn. However, that facility closed due to its impending sale. He admitted apprehension when he learned the sale would be held at the former Black and White Sale Barn since the barn is set up for commercial cow sales.

"The facility adapted well and I can't speak more highly of the efforts put forth by Dennis and Mel Kolb. They were extremely helpful," Edwards said.

The registration certificate doesn't mean a lot with out marketing the animals, Edwards explained as the reason he decided to hold the sale and speculated on the possibility of a Second Edition.

Elvin Kurtz, Morgantown, won two frozen embryo by Melvin and the Meadow cow in the drawing held at the end of the sale. He qualified for the drawing when he purchased a yearling Rotate daughter for $900.

Michael Weimer, Harrisburg, and Hardy Shore, Ontario, auctioneered the sale and Horace Backus read pedigrees. The sale was managed by Backus Associates.

New Board Chairman Ready To Help Promote Milk

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co. Correspondent

EBENSBURG – Jim Harteis is a team player. The newly-elected chairman of the Pennsylvania Milk Promotion Board likes to stress that in his new position as well as in his farming and avocations, "It's group effort that counts."

He works a family farm and runs a jug milk operation along with his brother Thomas at R.D. #4 Ebensburg in Cambria County. When he's not on the farm, he can usually be found coaching wrestling for the Central Cambria school district's elementary program. And since its founding in 1983 the Milk Promotion Board has been able to rely on Jim as a member.

As he takes on the chairmanship, Jim is upbeat about what the board has accomplished to date and about the prospects for the future. "We have a very good board of outspoken, knowledgeable men and women. As long as decisions are in the hands of that board, Pennsylvania's dairy promotion programs will be really effective."

He's pleased with the support Pennsylvania farmers have shown for the program so far, noting that in the last year they sent more than $2 million to the board. He feels that the $2 million has been well spent. "This is the only local that channels funds back to its local promotion committees," he notes. Jim plans to increase and enhance that program. "At a meeting earlier this week, the board made a substantial increase in the budget allotment for local promotion committees, and I'd like to see that increased again annually."

Jim is enthusiastic about the board's work. "I'm looking forward to more partnership with federal and other agencies, doing complementary effort."

He says that the dairy promotion program has been remarkably effective. "Consumption is up 5 to 6%, whereas it had been declining 1 to 2% annually. You have to stop the freight train first, and we've done that. We've come from behind, and we're making some good progress." He notes that soft drink and alcoholic beverage industries are spending $39 billion a year on advertising, versus the dairy industry's $8-9 billion. "But I think we're getting top quality for our dollar, and we can compete as long as we keep our quality high."

Future plans include more emphasis on promotion to accompany the advertising campaign. The board recently changed public relations agencies "to get more people-to-people programs," and the plans include more point of purchase literature, coupons, tie-in promotions, and food chain promotions. Jim notes that Pennsylvania's Real Seal promotion with McDonald's fast food restaurants won a national award recently, and another promotion with McDonald's is already being planned.

Although the board doesn't know which Pennsylvania farmers are donating to the program because federal order procedure prohibits release of the names, Jim would like those contributors to know that their money is being handled well. "Changes aren't going to happen overnight. Evolution takes some time. But we've got a lot of projects in the works for the coming year and beyond. We have quite a challenge ahead of us. There's a lot of potential here, lots of room to grow and to achieve."

Down On The Farm With Jim Harteis

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co. Correspondent

"Let's face it. Most of us are farmers because it's what we were raised to do," says Jim Harteis, Cambria County farmer and chairman of the Pennsylvania Milk Promotion Board. "We were brought up to farm, not to be merchandisers and businessmen."

Jim is talking about the need for a new approach to farming in the 1980's. The subject is on his mind a lot, both in his new chairmanship and in his own work on the family farm and dairy he operates with his brother.

Jim is able to take a hard look at farming these days, in part because he spent a few years away from it. After he graduated from Delaware Valley College with an agricultural science degree, he took a job as an assistant agricultural extension service agent. Then he realized he wanted to farm, and that a farming operation would be incompatible with his hours and responsibilities in his extension job. He took additional college credits and certified to become a techer.

As a physics and chemistry teacher at Chestnut Ridge High School in Bedford, he was able to rent a farm and start his first dairy operation. He found time to coach football and wrestling, and his wrestling team responded by introducing him to his wife, Dena.

When the farm next to his father's in Ebensburg, Cambria County, came up for sale, Jim jumped at the chance. He found a teaching job and coaching opportunities at Bishop Carroll High school in Ebensburg, where he taught until 1976. Since then, he's been able to farm full-time.

But in 1977, Jim and his brother and father were nearly wiped out when a barn fire killed off their herd and did $275,000 in damages. "It was a significant setback," Jim says. What touched him most during the disaster was the help that came from both local farmers and those he knew in Bedford County. "We owe our existence today to a lot of good neighbors and friends."

He says the barn was put up in just two months in the middle of winter, and before long they were able to start trying to rebuild a herd.

Faced with starting from scratch, the Harteis's decided to build toward the best possible breeding. Today they are on their third generation. In 86 lactations, they have a rolling herd average of 21,780 lbs. and 789 fat. Their B.A.A. is 104.4. Jim is justifiably proud of what they've achieved through careful breeding. In the current milking herd of 86 cows, there are 2 classified as excellent and 19 as very good. The Harteis's are about to send 8 bulls into stud. They also have an Elite List cow that has produced 27 eggs in two embryo flushes this year.

They are now breeding for cheese production, which Jim feels is the best possible merchandising direction for his milk. This winter they plan to install an electric feed cart, and they are presently in construction to double the size of their Friend-Lea dairy operation and store. As he polishes the 2,000-gallon tank in the milk house, Jim laughs. "It's a pretty ambitious tank for an 80-cow operation, but we like to think big."

In addition to his family operation, Jim is proud of the other Cambria County dairy farmers. "There are only 15 or 17 on test, but did you know they rank number one in the state for herd average?" he says. He's also proud of the helpers on the Harteis farm, high school age youngsters from the area. In addition to the outside help, Jim's 14-year-old son can be found in the barn when he's not busy with sports and studying. And his younger sons, ages 3 and 5, and his 2-year-old daughter are growing up in the barn as Jim did with his 13 brothers and sisters.

Jim is optimistic about the future of farming, but he stresses that dairy farmers must develop new attitudes and directions to succeed. "In today's game, merchandising cattle is everything. You've got to consider merchandising your herd. An average herd is only going to give average results. If your herd classifies and performs, that's all you need. You'll do well."

Smiths Named Blair County Farm Family Of The Year

BY BETSY STITT-YODER
Blair County Correspondent

MARTINSBURG — Shock and surprise played across the faces of Dennis and Margaret Smith as their names were announced as the 1986 Blair County Farm Family of the Year.

The presentation was made Oct. 16 at the annual Blair County Farm-City Banquet. The award is presented annually to a county family in recognition of a successful farming operation and community involvement.

Along with their three children, Doug, Dan and Laurie, the Smiths farm 196 acres in Morrisons Cove near Martinsburg.

"We are just ordinary farmers; we don't do anything special," exclaimed Mrs. Smith. "We were completely surprised with the award."

They are the second generation to farm the 76-acre Piney Creek Farm. Dennis and Margaret bought the farm from Dennis' parents, Marion and Verna, ten years ago.

They had farmed 40 years and were ready for retirement. Although he helped regularly on the farm, Dennis was also working for PPG Industries Inc. and Burchfield's Inc., a farm equipment dealer.

Margaret is a registered nurse and has worked at Nason Hospital, Spring Cove School District and for Dr. Whitstone.

The farm is definitely a family enterprise with each of the children helping. Doug and his wife, Veronica, and son, Ryan, live on the farm. He is employed full time.

Dan is a student at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, but he helps in the summer and during school breaks.

Laurie is a senior at Central High School. She not only helps on the farm, but promotes the "product of their toil" as Blair County dairy princess. Laurie also attended the Pennsylvania Governor's School of Agriculture at Penn State.

The Smiths rent 120 acres and raise corn and alfalfa to feed 68 milking registered Holsteins and 53 young cattle.

During the 10 years the Smiths have been farming on their own, they have seen numerous changes. "Things are more technical now with both crops and animals," Dennis said. Hybrid crops, monitored dairy rations, and sire selection have made dairying more complicated. "Computers are also on the increase," he continued.

The Smiths also discussed government involvement in agriculture. "The government can't get out of it all at once, but the less involved they are, the better," Dennis said. "Farming should be run as a business."

Margaret agrees that farming requires better management than it used to. "Much more time is now spent on keeping records and making management decisions," she said.

Mrs. Smith's main job on the farm is record keeping and she is also very involved in the community, especially in the Dairy Promotion Committee.

She believes the public needs to be educated about the time and money involved in farming and sees her work with the dairy promotion committee as one way of working toward that goal.

Although the future is not always bright, the Smiths would not trade their lifestyle. "The closeness of the family working together on the farm can't be beaten," Dennis and Margaret agreed.

They think the farm is a good place to raise children because it teaches them responsibility. Farm children also learn to depend on one another, they added.

The Smiths have allowed their children to choose their future careers for themselves. The children have been involved in school activities and sports and have always received their parent's support.

"We hope we can keep everything going and see the third and possibly fourth generation farming here," they said. With the start they have, their future looks bright.

Laurie, who serves as the Blair County dairy princess, checks on the calves.

Laurie, Margie, Dennis and Doug work together closely to run an efficient farm.

USDA Buyout Report

WASHINGTON — An estimated 10,400 head of dairy cattle were slaughtered in federally inspected plants during the week ending Oct. 11, as a result of the Dairy Termination Program, the U.S Department of Agriculture announced Wednesday.

This total includes all cows, heifers and calves identified as dairy animals designated for disposition in compliance with the program requirements.

The cumulative total of cattle slaughtered under the program from April 1 through Oct. 11 is an estimated 811,800 head.

The purchases of meat in addition to normal purchases are to help offset the effects of the DTP on the domestic meat market. For the two-week period ending Oct. 25, the government purchased 200,000 pounds of meat. The cumulative purchases, reported bi-weekly as of Oct. 25, total 297.8 million pounds.

Dairy cattle reported for export under the program for the period April 1 to Oct. 25 totaled an estimated 39,143 head. An estimated 1,108 were exported during the week ending Oct. 25.

Live cattle exported under the program are expected to increase as countries develop tenders to participate in the export enhancement program.

Cornell Conference To Explore Pros and Cons of Milk Quotas

ITHACA, N.Y. — The pros and cons of establishing a nationwide mandatory milk quota system for the U.S. dairy industry to curb chronic milk surpluses and to improve prices for farmers will be debated in Syracuse on Nov. 13.

The debate will be part of the day-long Cornell Conference on Supply Management Programs for the Dairy Industry at the Sheraton Inn on Electronics Parkway beginning at 10 a.m.

David L. Call, dean of the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, which is sponsoring the conference, will make welcoming remarks.

Speaking for establishment of a milk quota program will be Ronald Knutson, a professor of agricultural economics from Texas A and M University. Opposing views will be given by Bernard F. Stanton, a professor of agricultural economics at Cornell.

Conference participants also will examine various aspects of quota systems, including the past, present and future directions of dairy policy, considerations in the design and implementation of a national compulsory supply management program, potential impacts of quota systems on economic efficiency and equity among dairy farmers.

Cornell University agricultural economist Harry M. Kaiser, who is organizing the conference, said that intense grassroots interest in alternative forms of supply management for the nation's dairy industry has been developing over the last several years.

"Most notable among such programs is a national mandatory milk quota system," Kaiser said. "If such a system is adopted, it would create tremendous changes and would have significant ramifications on all segments of the dairy economy."

Public interest in mandatory supply management or production quota programs has been rising because of fears that the burgeoning surpluses of dairy products, high costs of removing surpluses under the federal price support program and declining prices for producers will persist, according to Kaiser.

"Some people are also concerned that our experiments with 'voluntary' forms of supply management such as the recent federal whole-herd buyout and milk diversion programs are merely a band-aid approach to the problems facing the dairy industry," he said.

Supporters of a national mandatory quota system point to similar systems adopted in other countries such as Canada and members of the European Community as success stories that could be repeated in the United States, according to Kaiser.

"But the mechanics and implications of milk quota systems in effect in those countries are poorly understood," he said. "The structure of the dairy industry as well as social and political institutions are quite different in these countries."

For more information about the conference program and registration, contact Harry Kaiser, Department of Agricultural Economics, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. 14850 or at (607) 255-1598.

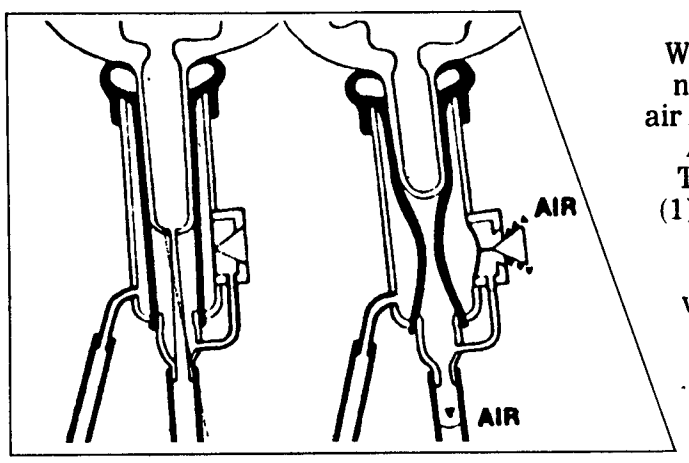
BIO-MILKER

A New Way to Better Milking



The High Tech people have done it again. We won't flatly declare that the new Westfalia Bio-Milker Cluster will revolutionize dairying, but it could come close.

What is the new Bio-Milker about? Well, the new patented design features an automatic air inlet valve located just under the teat end. Air enters only during the massage phase. This controlled air burst has two functions. (1) It reduces the risk of infection by moving the milk away from the teat end, eliminating return flow. (2) It releases the vacuum under the teat end, ensuring a biologically desired pressure release of teat tissue.

The Bio-Milker makes it possible for the first time to harmonize milking technique with a natural, gentle, protective biological milking rythm.

It's the new Westfalia Bio-Milker for Healthier Udders, Faster Milking, Reduced Cell Count, Longer Productive Cow Life. Contact your Westfalia Sales Center today, or call or write for more information.

Dairymen Inc. President Predicts Mergers For Co-ops

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. – Members of the Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen, Inc., were told last Saturday during their annual meeting to expect some "weird marriages" in the dairy industry over the next few years.

"Weird marriages," unusual affiliations and imminent mergers of more cooperatives were part of the predictions of division president Fred G. Butler, in his annual address to the membership meeting, held at the Marriott's Hunt Valley Inn.

The West Virginia dairyman called for an "epidemic" of confidence in the dairy industry, to combat problems resulting from decades of turning to the federal government for solutions, which are rarely found.

"We have centered our faith in a federal government and asked it to do things for us which we could better have done for ourselves. We have watched programs for the needy turn into windfalls for the greedy. We have continued to elect to Congress those who have mortgaged the future of our grandchildren to pay for "so-called" free lunches for millions who could have provided them for themselves...irresponsible Congressmen who rise up with righteous indignation and repeat in unison 'Thou shalt not touch these sacred programs which we have created," said Butler, calling for a rekindling of the independent spirit which made America the greatest nation on earth.

He noted that, while not satisfactory to everyone and a concensus measure, the 1985 Farm Bill is working for the dairy industry. Production trended downward and commercial sales continuing upward through the first six months of the year.

Division manager John Collins briefly reviewed the division's accomplishments over the past year, including an increase of 2 percent in production in spite of 20 less members. Division offices were moved from Baltimore to Sykesville, in combination with warehouse and lab facilities, new cooling equipment has been installed at Knoxville, Md. to better facilitate long-distance movement of milk, and quality records are now totally computerized. A payment of $2,200 was made to one member who suffered loss of milking facilities to fire, under the Dairymen's Natural Disaster program.

Collins also noted the formation of a regional marketing group of Dairymen's Middle Atlantic division, Interstate Milk Producers and Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperatives to discuss milk prices in the area.

The division manager predicted a continued improvement in milk price through December, with a downtrend expected January through June, and then climbing again in July. Minnesota-Wisconsin may drop below levels seen this spring, but not as far below the support price as it did in 1986. With corn prices below a dollar in the midwest, Collins further expects continued strong milk production. Combined with increasing consumption from advertising efforts, and a decrease in the government assessment, he sees the overall dairy industry in 1987 to hold or be in a slightly stronger position than it was in 1986.

Six directors were ratified to the Middle Atlantic Division board. Reelected to board seats are Crawford Galt, Chestertown, District 9; David Patrick, Woodbine, District 5; and Myron Wilhide, Detour, District 3. New members of the board, all from Pennsylvania, are Robert Grove, Greencastle, District 8; Bailey Herring, Farmington, District 11; and Gene Kilby, Peach Bottom, District 14.

Honored for service on the board were retiring directors Carl Allison, Elam Bender and Phares Hurst. Allison, of Chambersburg, served six years representing District 8. He chaired the merger study committee when MCMP became a Dairymen division. A corporate board member, he was corporate secretary for the past two years and served on the executive, acquisition and finance committees.

Elam Bender, Myersdale, served three years representing District 11. He was a member of the division's membership and quality control committees. Phares Hurst, Leola, represented District 14 for one year, completing a previous unexpired term, and served on the division's equipment committee.

Others recognized during the division's annual meeting for their service to the industry and the cooperative were Maryland Dairy Princess Kaylena Martin and division Young Dairymen couple Glenn and Debbie Shirley.

Kaylena Martin, 19, is the daughter of Marlin and Eva Martin, Smithsburg. Her father represents District 12 on the division board.

Glenn and Debbie Shirley farm with his family near Westminster, and were named the division's Young Dairymen during competition at the Pennmarva Young Cooperator conference, held at Gettysburg in June. They will represent the Middle Atlantic Division at the corporate Young Dairymen contest during the Dairymen, Inc., annual meeting, December 10 to 12, in Atlanta, Ga.

Also included on the morning business program was a promotion update from Robert Earle, vice president of operations for Southeast United Dairy Industry Association. Earle noted that, after the first two years of the 15 cents per hundredweight checkoff program, milk sales nationwide are up 7.1 percent, representing 8.6 billion pounds of milk. It marks the first time in 20 years that milk sales have reversed the downward trend.

Dairymen, Inc., is in the "black" with record high assets, according to chief financial officer, Jim Mueller.

Kendigs Receive Dairymen Inc.'s Highest Quality Award

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. – Longtime members and quality award winners were honored last Saturday, during the Middle Atlantic Division, Dairymen, Inc.'s annual meeting at the Marriott's Hunt Valley Inn.

Plaques for 50 years of continuous membership in the Dairymen division and its predecessor, Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, were the Bowling Green Farm, Inc., operated by J. Philip and Ridgely Jones, John M. Jr. and Theresa Perdue, and Malcolm and Charles Wiley.

Four family farm memberships were recognized for continuous membership of 25 years. Recipients of quarter-century awards were the Anderson-Friendship Farm, Inc., of E. J. and J. Anderson, the Burns Farm of J. P. Jr. and R. Burns, Malcolm and Arlene Hoff, and Robert and Michael Stewart.

The division's highest quality award, the excellence award, went to Kevin and Nancy Kendig, Shippensburg, Pa. The gold certificate, second highest level of quality milk achievement, went to Edwin and Carolyn Calhoun, Glen Rock, Pa.

Thirteen member farms were recipients of the Silver Certificate, which recognizes those who qualify 11 out of the 12 months of the year on the division's Honor Roll program. On the one month not qualifying, standard plate count must be under 50,000. Recipients of the Silver Award are: John Adams, David and Amanda Beiler, Harold and Sharon Carbaugh, James and Lorraine Dougherty, Edith and Thomas Franklin, Kevin and Robin Martin, Robert Mays, John Pierce, Robert and Mary Poole, Henry and Patricia Shirley, Levi Swarey, Kenneth and Virginia Swartz and Way-Brite Farms.

Qualifications for the monthly Honor Roll program include shipping the entire month with a standard plate count of less than 5,000 and Somatic Cell Count of less than 500,000; no antibiotics or suspensions; freeze point of .530 or better.

In addition, Gold Certificate winners must reach the Honor Roll standards every month, and score field inspections scores of 92 or better. To attain the excellence award, members must be on the Honor Roll each month, plus attain inspection scores of either 99 or 100 points.

Quality production recognition is part of the division's on-going quality program, which offers financial incentives for high quality production in a two-tier premium program.

Jersey Genetic Recovery Steps Explained

COLUMBUS, Ohio – Do you have any unregistered, purebred Jerseys? If so, there is a program designed to help you upgrade your herd and improve your dairy operation.

Since 1975, Jersey dairymen across the country have been using the Genetic Recovery Program to identify and record their unregistered, purebred Jerseys. Over 80,000 registered Jerseys have resulted.

Genetic Recovery Jerseys have topped sales across the country, won top honors at major shows, made outstanding production records and produced young sires that have been sampled by major AI bull studs.

The program is as easy as 1, 2, 3. Your unregistered Jersey cow sired by an unknown bull or by a grade Jersey bull will become the Original Animal and carry the OA prefix on her name. A dead cow that was sired by a registered Jersey bull but who has living daughers in the herd can also be an OA. The OA fee is $5.00.

In step 2, the daughter of the OA sired by a registered Jersey bull is eligible for the Provisional Register and will carry the PR prefix on her name. The PR fee is $7.00.

If the PR cow meets certain production and type qualifications, her daughters are eligible for step 3, Genetic Recovery, and will carry the GR prefix. Cow with the GR prefix are fully registered The GR fee is the minimum for registered Jerseys.

Over 600 Acres Of Lancaster Co. Farmland Sold For $1.8 Million

BY IDA RISSER

LANCASTER — Fourteen tracts of southern Lancaster County farmland, formerly owned by Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. were sold here Saturday, Oct. 25. Prices ranged from $1,000 per acre for a wooded tract with no buildings, to $10,300 per acre for a 13-acre piece with a house, barn and garage.

The nine farm tracts sold for $1,852,000, while the five small tracts with houses totalled $245,000. Pennsylvania Power and Light was very pleased with the prices.

Hundreds of people, including 130 registered bidders, attended the sale, which was held in a large tent set up on the tract at River and Anchor Roads. J. Omar Landis Auction Service of Ephrata conducted the sale.

PP&L will receive an award from the American Farmland Trust at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C. for donating development rights to the local farmland preservation board prior to the sale.

Amish attending the sale did not purchase any farms because the prices were too high and the land was not near another Amish settlement.

Two farm tracts were purchased by Rep. John E. Barley and his brother Abram G. for $520,000. The 110-acre farm with two sets of buildings sold for $130,000 and the 75 acres with a house and barn for $220,000.

B. Milton and LeRoy Funk of Funk Brothers Inc. produce bought three tracts: 45 acres with an orchard, house, barn and chicken house for $195,000; 70 acres with a tobacco shed but no house for $265,000; and 13 acres with the family homestead for $134,000.

More than half of the land sold Saturday had been in the Funk family before PP&L purchased it in the 1960s. At that time, the utility planned to build a power plant along the river.

Cheryl and Quintin Frey, associated with Turkey Hill Dairy, purchased one 55-acre tract with a barn and corn cribs, but no house, for $160,000. Owners are permitted to build houses on the farms for themselves, their parents and their children.

An anonymous buyer purchased three tracts through local attorney T. Roberts Appel II. One farm with 104 acres and a house, tobacco shed, summerhouse and barn, sold for $288,000. A 94-acre tract with a house and barn brought $221,000. The third tract purchased by the attorney was a 69-acre piece with mostly woodland and no house for $69,000.

Five small tracts with houses were auctioned in the afternoon. One brick rancher along River Road sold to Elaine S. Warner of Washington Boro for $50,000. Another went to Robert VanderPlate and I. Norman Gerlach of Washington Boro for $50,000; and one rancher to Danielle B. and Janelle R. Funk of Washington Boro for $43,000.

A frame house, formerly a schoolhouse, located along Anchor Road sold to John and Rita Young of Manor Township for $38,000. The final property consisted of a two-story brick house on River Road and a frame barn which was sold to Thomas B. and Bernadette M. Funk of Washington Boro for $64,500.

The prices, between $2,700 and $3,800 per acre, were within the range predicted by farm financers prior to the sale.

Messersmith Honored At Lycoming Extension Meeting

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

WARRENSVILLE — William Messersmith, Lycoming County extension director was honored for 25 years of service in the Pennsylvania Cooperative Extension Service, Oct. 23, at the annual Lycoming County Extension meeting held at Warrensville.

"You folks make it possible. It's an interesting and fulfilling job," Messersmith said as he thanked family, staff and the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service for gifts he received.

Dr. Donald E. Evans, Assistant Dean and Director of Pennsylvania Cooperative Extension Service, presented Messersmith with a rocking chair from the extension service. He received a painting and a check for $423 from his staff and the people of Lycoming County.

Evans, featured speaker for the evening, gave a short talk on the importance of the cooperative extension service today.

"I think the extension service is just as vital today and tomorrow as it has been — especially as we are entering the information age. We are going to need more information because of the rapid changes occuring," Evans said.

Evans was confident with interested and dedicated people and the research base at Penn State that the cooperative extension service would make the right decisions in the future.

The cooperative extension service is going through an extensive review, according to Evans, in which they will be using an issue based program. Four areas to be studied are: economic systems, food and fiber systems, how to maintain and improve the quality of life, and the area of human capital improvements such as the 4-H program.

In an election of officers Ruth Lundy was voted president of the Lycoming County Extension Service for the coming year. She replaces outgoing president, Burt Staman. Paul Wentzler was elected vice-president; Nancy Hepburn, secretary; and Alice Girven, treasurer.

In other business Neal Buss, Agricultural Program Leader, Northeast Pennsylvania, spoke on "marketing" the extension service, and 4-H'ers, Melanie Eck and Sue McCaslin, winners of awards in public speaking, gave short speeches.

Becky Hipple, Lycoming County dairy princess, and Sue Eck, Pennsylvania strawberry queen, hosted a strawberry punch reception prior to the meeting and presented brief reports on what they've accomplished thus far in their reigns.

PA Dairy Promotion Program Wins International Honors

HARRISBURG — A Pennsylvania dairy products promotion that involved discounted breakfasts at 17 midstate McDonald's restaurants has won worldwide honors for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP) and the HBM/Creamer advertising agency in Pittsburgh.

The Pennsylvania promotion, which featured breakfast discounts for redeemed Real Seals, was ranked by McDonald's ahead of 32 other promotions in its "1986 Best Bets" worldwide competition.

The promotion, carried out by HBM/Creamer this spring for PDPP, "generated far more sales than projected," according to Jim Harteis of Ebensburg, chairman of the PDPP advisory board.

McDonald's restaurants in the Johnstown-Altoona-State College area discounted breakfast entrees by 50 cents for each of the 24,880 Real Seals redeemed during the six-week promotion, Harteis noted. Real Seals were obtained from milk cartons and other dairy products. Customers were limited to one per entree. Only entrees using dairy products were eligible for the discount.

A 10 percent increase in breakfast sales was projected by PDPP and McDonald's. The actual increase was 23.6 percent, according to the Ebensburg dairyman. The promotion also exceeded goals for total transactions.

A second breakfast promotion in the Meadville-Erie area this summer did even better, Harteis said. The 19 participating McDonald's restaurants redeemed 47,316 Real Seals in six weeks, 39 percent more than estimated.

State dairymen contribute more than $2 million annually to the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program to finance advertising, promotion and nutrition research for dairy products.

Capitol Milk Producers Cooperative To Sell

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. — "To satisfy the rumors," Capitol Milk Producers Manager Bill Kiser spoke briefly to members and guests at the annual meeting of the Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen, Inc., held Saturday at the Marriott's Hunt Valley Inn.

The "rumors" concern the proposed sale of the 144-member dairy cooperative's assets, which includes the chain of High's dairy-convenience stores scattered across the Mid-Atlantic region.

Kiser reviewed the background of the cooperative, tracing from 1964 when the milk marketing organization was "virtually bankrupt" to Capitol's "best year ever" in 1985.

According to Kiser, Capitol was approached two years ago by a potential purchaser of the assets, but at that time there was no interest from the cooperative's board. Nevertheless, "a time to consider the value of the organization" came about more recently.

Bill Kiser

"Membership burden of ownership is growing; to continue would take great amounts of capital. Presently the only way for members to redeem equity is through retirement or death. Thus, this seemed the appropriate way to go," Kiser elaborated.

"Ultimately, the final decision will be left to the membership," he stressed, adding that there is virtually no precedent of a cooperative selling its assets at a period when it is financially strong and healthy. Capitol has the highest per member equity level of any cooperative in the nation.

In mid-July, a sell proposal was offered to 64 potential investors, and letters sent out informing the membership. Proposals were reviewed two months later, with 18 presented to the co-op's board, and six selected for further study and negotiations.

A third round of bidding got underway Oct. 13, eliminating potential investors down to two. Negotiations are in final stage of that third and last round of bids, and member meetings were held Oct. 15.

Two conditions have applied to all bids, Kiser said. No bid under $50 million would be considered and final package would have to include an ongoing 10-year supply contract for the membership.

If the sale is ratified, Capitol leadership hopes to finalize arrangements by Nov. 30, but definitely by Dec. 31 to allow members to take the tax advantages still available before tax reform measures become effective.

After lunch at Weaver's, the group toured part of the processing plant. Allen Tate hosted the group in Weaver's Tour Center. Working under the slogan "Nobody Knows Chicken Like The Folks At Weavers", the business started more than 50 years ago when Victor Weaver took 17 dressed chickens to sell at the Sharon Hill Farmers Market. From that beginning to a national network of brokers, warehouses and distribution centers and a large fleet of refrigerated trucks is a large step.

In addition, to the New Holland facility, Tate said the company has plants in North Carolina, Alabama and Georgia. About 60 percent of their products are distrubited under the Weaver label. And the other 40 percent goes to fast-food outlets and restaurants.

NFU Offers Haylift Hotline

DENVER, Colo. – Farmers nationwide in need of hay for livestock feed and fodder are encouraged to write to National Farmers Union's Haylift Hotline, Denver, Colorado 80251 to receive a listing of available hay and sellers. NFU's Haylift Hotline, initiated in response to the Southeastern U.S. drought, has listings from more than 150 hay producers in 20 states with more than 60,000 tons of hay available for sale at a reasonable price.

Hay producers interested in listing hay for sale at a reasonable price or for donation for emergency use may call 1-800-247-7539. Callers' information will be added to the inventory.

Haylift Hotline was designed to provide relief to farmers and ranchers who, due to drought or flood or other emergency, need a supply of hay for their livestock. Before such volunteer relief efforts began, the price per ton for purchased hay in the Southeast was in excess of $200. Haylift Hotline listings now show hay for sale at $25 to $125 per ton.

From July 20 to Sept. 1, it is estimated that more than 80,000 tons of hay was transported to the Southeastern U.S. through a massive effort involving more than 40 railroads and rail equipment companies, 32 airlifts by National Guard and other military airplanes, and volunteered tractor-trailers.

NFU's Haylift Hotline was directly involved in moving 70,000 tons of hay from every state in the contiguous United States except New Jersey. Thousands of volunteers cooperated, including groups such as a cotton seed oil company in California, a 4-H Club in Nevada, and church groups in South Dakota. Many state Farmers Union efforts expanded to include coalitions with other groups.

Dairy Business Termed 'Mature Industry'

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. – Calling the dairy business a "mature industry," Jim McDowell says milk cooperatives must increasingly be involved in the total food industry, rather than focusing on marketing milk.

McDowell is chief operating officer of Dairymen, Inc., third-largest milk cooperative in the nation, annually marketing over 5.5 million pounds of milk from 6,500 member families, and headquartered in Louisville, Ky. He spoke during the annual meeting of the Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen, Inc., held last Saturday at the Hunt Valley Marriott Inn.

Middle Atlantic Division, headquartered at Sykesville, Md., was the former Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, and has a current membership of 870 dairy farm families in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia.

A mature industry, according to McDowell, is one with a stable demand for the product, depressed margins, under-utilization of available production facilities, and disappearance of competitors, all symptomatic of dairying. To overcome economic stagnation which accompanies this industry maturing, McDowell sees dairy cooperatives undergoing structural changes, diversifying, and developing specialty, or "niche" markets.

"And there'll be some weird marriages and relationships developed in dealing with this maturing industry," said the Dairymen operations officer, concurring with similar predictions made by division president Fred Butler.

Co-ops will move to horizontally integrate through partnerships and joint ventures, such as a present one taking shape at Decatur, Ala., between Dairymen, Inc., and H. P. Hood to develop and market a long-shelf-life ice cream mix for the fast food industry. First product from the joint venture is expected to enter the market about the first of the year.

Vertical integration, or taking product more directly to consumers, has been the object of Dairymen's Ultra-High-Temperature processing facility at Savannah, Ga., and the wholly-owned milk and dairy foods processing and sales subsidiary, Flav-O-Rich. With a combined sales distribution system that can reach 28 percent of the nation's population, and a fleet of up to 2,800 vehicles, Dairymen is looking toward moving companion-type commodities for better utilization of production and distribution facilities.

Specialty, or "niche" markets, include value added products, such as Dairymen's Farm Best UHT long-shelf-life milk, adds McDowell. Other related long-shelf-life items being packaged are Hi-C drinks for the Coca-Cola company, and Dairymen's own Nutri-Treat, a fortified dairy drink.

McDowell sees no appreciable rise over the next three years in the prices farmers will receive for their milk. While supply management is gaining attention by many in the industry, Dairymen's position is to give the present program a chance to work

"Better the industry be market driven, rather than government driven," says McDowell, citing trends which followed the conversion of tobacco growing to quotas, and in which "farmers got out of the tobacco business and into the base business."

A continued strong financial structure undergirds member equity in Dairymen, according to chief financial officer Jim Mueller.

He reported both Dairymen and Flav-O-Rich as in the "black," with the all time high asset level of $252 million. Member equity totals $87 million, with $57 million long-terms debts, and a continued Double A credit rating from Standard and Poor, allowing the cooperative to borrow at low-risk rates and reduce finance costs by a million dollars annually.

Some 5.6 billion pounds of member milk was marketed through the fiscal year, up 3 percent in spite of both the severe drought and heavy buyout signup in the Southeast. Total consolidated sales were at $987 million, the first time in five years that sales have dropped below the billion dollar level, but attributable to lower product prices.

The 1986 fiscal year end figures tally to a $8.6 million net margin, with $15 million to be returned to members in the five-year revolving equity program.

While we did not yet get costs down as low as we wanted," noted Mueller "it is the 10th out of 12 years that more than 97 cents of every dollar of raw milk sales is returned to members."

"I Had An Embarrassing Problem."

"It was something I didn't even want to talk about. But now that the problem is solved, I'll tell you. It was a terrible case of raw, cracked teats and udder. You can imagine how that made me feel, especially since I had been number one in the herd. I was miserable!

"Then the dairyman—bless his heart—treated me with Udder Butter.™ You know, the easy-spreading, long-lasting unguent from the folks at Corona. Soon my teats and udder were smooth, moist and comfortable again. That's because Udder Butter is the ointment that combines an effective antiseptic with lanolin and other fine lubricants.

"Udder Butter fights the growth of bacteria, too, and it's good for sun and windburned muzzle, cuts, wounds and abrasions for all animals. Now I get routine treatments with Udder Butter, so my teats and udder stay smooth and healthy.

"You know, I thought all teat-and-udder preparations had a harsh chemical odor, and were hard to wash off at milking time. But not Udder Butter! Thanks to its self-emulsifying formula, it washes right off with warm soapy water. And it has a refreshing vanilla aroma, so it's pleasant to use.

"Now I'm telling all my sisters to ask their dairyman to get Udder Butter. Whether it's the 7 ounce tube, the 28 ounce tub or the 7 pound pail, as long as it's Udder Butter, it's a container of contentment!"

The Dairy Business

Old Dogs Learn New Tricks

Gretel, the family Laborador, is 14 years old. That's about 90 years in terms of human age. She has been a part of our household ever since Christmas 1972, when she arrived in a small shoe box wrapped in poinsettia spangled paper, secured with a red ribbon.

That Christmas gift has truly endured the test of time, stretching both her love for the family and her sometimes frustrating habits, over the intervening years.

She was sired by a Laborador, whom she resembles somewhat, but she is really a mixture of breeds. Her mother was a Springer Spaniel, with long black hair, a white chest and big feet. Like most Spaniels her tail was docked, so that when Gretel and her eight brothers and sisters were a month old, they too had their tails shortened.

I'm reasonably sure that it was not done by a veterinarian, because it looked more like a hatchet job.

Regardless of the method used, it was a most fortunate operation from the point of view of the household. Nothing in the house would have been safe from the club-like appendage which was her original equipment. She uses the remaining two inch stub to express her innermost joys as well as a warning of impending invasion, sparked by a knock on the front door or a strange vehicle in the driveway. The frantic oscillation of that short stub would spell disaster if it still possessed the full length and swing of a mature tail.

Speaking of tricks, Gretel never really mastered any that are worth mentioning.

She was 2 years old when our neighbor Randy, who had no dog of his own, enrolled her in 4-H dog obedience class. She learned to 'sit' and 'stay' and 'lie down,' with a bit of reserve for her own desires on the subject.

The rest of her obedience record must be tempered with a large degree of forebearance and allowance for other distractions. We always hoped that Randy learned more than Gretel did, enough from the course to benefit himself and any other dog that might own him in the future.

Some psychologists will say, (or maybe it is from the pen of a dog lover), that a family dog will take on the character of it's owner. Judging from what I observe of Gretel's character, I am noisy, opinionated, lazy and an expensive glutton. If she is indeed a reflection of myself, I am also quite friendly and lovable, especially when patted on the head and not kicked while lying down in front of the kitchen door. There has to be some redemption from an otherwise useless existance.

But who would dare say that any creature is useless? Every farm needs a dog, whether for chasing livestock or guarding the property or just plain companionship.

Our farm was never without a dog. It was an essential part of farm life. I remember every one of them, from Lady, who had a natural herding instinct, Blizzard, who was from one of her annual and prolific litters, through Mike the Shepherd, and finally Chester, who was martyred by a car while chasing a vicious stray out of the front yard. They were all mutts, but every one had a character that made them a vital part of the farm life at the time.

Gretel would have made a fine farm dog if given the opportunity. Although she has become strictly a house pet, she loves to roam the fields, chasing groundhogs and squirrels, and is a jealous guardian of her property. Skunks and rabbits are her nemesis. She hates bicycles and trucks, and would gladly pursue every vehicle that passes the house. But alas, she never became acquainted with cows, so her education is limited.

Arthritis and old age has slowed her down, and she will probably never learn any new tricks. She lives her life as dictated by a dog's will, eating when hungry, barking when happy or excited, and licking my hand when in need of affection. Who needs new tricks?

Weimer Wins Adams County Junior Production Contest

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

HARNEY, Md. – "Recall the Past; Plan for the Future" served as the program theme at the Adams County Holstein Club's recent banquet and 35th Annual Meeting.

Club President David Kehr welcomed the 100 plus breeders and friends of the industry that packed the firehall for an evening of reminiscing about the past and projecting the future of the club and the breed. Kehr introduced some of the charter members of the club and also noted a number of third generation members in the crowd.

One of the highlights of the evening was a slide presentation prepared by County Extension Director Tom Piper. Piper and long-time club member Adam Lobaugh narrated the slide show that not only traced the history of the Adams County Holstein Club, but also chronicled the evolution of the dairy industry in Adams County.

Kenneth Raney, Pennsylvania Holstein Association, followed on the program with an update on the Association's current membership drive, the need for more advertising in the Association's Magazine, Profiles, and the 1987 State Convention plans. Turning towards the future, Raney encouraged the breeders to keep their registrations current, to remain optimistic about their export prospects, and to take full advantage of the industry's latest technologies.

Youth Chairman Robert Clowney presented a Holstein jacket to the winner of the junior production contest for high milk and fat records. This year's winner in both categories was an Elevation daughter owned by Jennifer Weimer, New Oxford, Pa. The winning cow's record in 305 days was 24,341 pounds of milk and 857 pounds of fat.

New directors elected to a three-year term were: Adam Lobaugh, Robert Flickinger and Michael Todt. Newly elected officers for 1987 are: Paul Waybright, President; Adam Lobaugh, Vice-President; Vincent Lobaugh, Secretary; and Michael Todt, Treasurer. Dan Waybright will serve as the county's State Director.

PFU Convention Slated For Nov. 10-12

WILLIAMSPORT – The Pennsylvania Farmers Union will hold its 15th Annual Convention Nov. 10 to 12 at the Genetti Lycoming Hotel in Williamsport. The theme will be "The Courage to Make a Change."

Approximately 250 elected delegates of the general farm organization will convene to vote on policy resolutions and by-law proposals submitted by county chapters in recent weeks.

"This is the most important event of the year for us," said PFU Executive Director Chester L. Reed. "The policy decisions of our members form the foundation of our day-to-day legislative program."

Reed explained that any resolutions passed by the Pennsylvania delegates are forwarded to the National Farmers Union for consideration at its March, 1987 convention in Fort Worth, Tex.

"We're definitely a grass roots organization. All of the farming families in the National Farmers Union can truly say they have input into the direction their organization follows," Reed said.

The group will also hear a variety of speakers address the strengths and weaknesses of current agricultural policies and programs. The keynote address will be given by Dr. Wayne D. Rasmussen, a historian with USDA's Economic Research Service. Dr. Rasmussen has devoted much of his career to the technological, economic, and social changes that have taken place in agriculture.

Other confirmed speakers include: Cy Carpenter, president of the National Farmers Union, Pennsylvania Senator Roger A. Madigan; and Edward Graf, special assistant to the president of the National Farmers Organization.

Holstein Group Sees Embryos At Barn Meeting

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

EMMITSBURG, Md. — A cold drizzly October day last Saturday greeted those in attendance at the Maryland Holstein Association's barn meeting. They group witnessed an informal demonstration on the flushing, splitting and implanting of embryos, performed by Dr. Allen McCauley and his team from Em-Tram, Elizabethtown, Pa.

McCauley and Dr. Boyd Henderson demonstrated the flushing technique by using five cows provided by Hills-Hope and Coldsprings Farms. Although he explained the basic principles from a beginner's standpoint, McCauley's also bought out points useful for the most experienced person in ET work.

At the beginning of the demonstration the cows were given a injection of Lydocane, a spinal block. Lydocane prevents the animal from straining against the vet while he performing the flushing procedure by numbing the back end of their bodies.

The entire process for the five cows took two hours and netted in 18 embryos from one recipient.

Beth Grove assisted with the flushing procedure which resembled an assembly line. McCauley noted this practice is the only way to be cost effective.

McCauley also emphasized the importance of using healthy heifers as recipients. He noted that animals they could have used in the past as recipients, would never qualify now. He said this is one place corners can't be cut.

Although the whole process is not very complicated, McCauley pointed out, it all has to be done correctly to work.

The afternoon session featured McCauley's wife, Susan Hallowell, demonstrating how embryos are split. She worked through a microscope which was hooked up to a television monitor, permitting the group to view the process.

McCauley concluded the day with a discussion on the future of ET's on the farm.

He emphasized the need to work only with cows that have marketable eggs, especially male. So far no reliable sexing procedure is available; experimentation in this area is ongoing, McCauley said.

The goal for ET work is to be able to freeze and thaw the embryo in a cotton plugged straw and then place the embryo in the cow with a minimum of handling in between. Last year Em-Tram posted a 64 percent survival rate with frozen embryos; at Em-Tram West, Turlock, Calif., they recorded a rate of 75 percent.

This year's host farm for the barn meeting was Hills-Hope run by David and Sally Hill, Emmitsburg.

Dr. Boyd Henderson of Em-Tram, Elizabethtown, Pa., points out embryos in various stages of division on the television monitor.

Beef Checkoff

amount, $4 may go for trucking, $3 for the auction's commission and an additional $1 for the checkoff. This leaves the producer with $10 for his $18 calf.

Pat McCoy, a partner in McCoy Cattle Company at the Lancaster Stockyards, echoes DeGaetano's sentiments. "A buck a head on these cattle is getting to be a big profit," he says. And, at a dollar a head, there's no reason why cattle should be assessed more than twice. "In an average steer's life he's traded three to eight times," McCoy points out, venturing that a one-time assessment at slaughter might be a better approach.

In principle, though, the program is on solid ground, says McCoy. "It's something positive in an industry that needs some promotion."

Marietta-area farmer Dwight Hess also belives that checking off for promotion is a good strategy. But Hess, who finishes several hundred beef cattle a year, also thinks $1 a head is too high. "Half that amount would be more in line," he says.

Another objection, voiced by DeGaetano, as well as others, is that assessing dairy cows places an unfair proportion of the promotion burden on the dairy industry. According to USDA, all dairy animals–not just those being sold for beef purposes–are included in the checkoff. "The dairyman himself is already paying dearly for advertising," says DeGaetano.

But Robert Coleman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, points out that dairymen also stand to benefit from the checkoff. "The more money we collect from the veal industry, the more advertising and promotion we can give to that industry. If they contribute 25 or 30 percent to the program, then they'll get back that much in promotion," he says. "The beef program will also help the dairy farmer when he takes his cull cows to market."

Despite the problems involved in implementing the program, DeGaetano believes that promotion is a much needed shot in the arm. "I do think we need promotion with all the bad press that the meat industry is getting," he says, adding that the medical industry should be targeted for nutritional advertising.

Pat McCoy cautions that the beef industry must avoid wasting checkoff money by talking to itself in its own publications. "I don't want to see ads in the heart of feeder cattle country. I want to see them in downtown New York where they're needed."

According to Robert Coleman, this is just about what the Beef Promotion and Research Board has in mind. Coleman says that a national ad campaign will target professionals between the ages of 25 and 54. Ads placed on television and radio, as well as in eight to 10 major magazines, are expected to reach 97 percent of this group, he says.

In addition to advertising, DeGaetano thinks that some of the money should be used to find ways to produce beef at a cheaper price. "We can spend all the money in the world (on promotion), but as long as beef is selling so much higher than chicken and turkey, it will be outsold by chicken and turkey."

Coleman reports that compliance with the program has been heartening. Vintage Sales Stables of Intercourse, Lancaster County, is one of only two auction houses nationwide that are refusing to collect checkoff funds, says Coleman.

Robert Frame, president of Vintage, has little faith in promotional programs. "They're asking us to steal a dollar a head from every farmer," says Frame. "I've watched this business all my life. The only answer to it is supply and demand.

"The greatest way to boost demand is to lower the price," Frame continues. "How are you going to get people to pay $5 for steak when they can buy chicken for 50 cents?"

Frame's son, Robert, Jr., is an attorney and vice president of Vintage. He is convinced that the checkoff should not even be considered legal. "You've got the federal government exacting an amount from private individuals to pay for the views of another group of individuals (Beef Council). I think that's unconstitutional."

Frame is also concerned that advertising costs accrued between now and the referendum will be paid for with funds that should be set aside to honor refund requests.

But council's Robert Coleman points out that 15 percent of all funds collected will be held in an escrow account to cover refunds. If the total of the refund requests should exceed the 15 percent, however, producers will receive an amount that reflects their percentage of the total requests.

Since the checkoff is mandated by the farm bill's Beef Promotion and Research Act, Coleman cautions that noncompliance is considered a federal offense. The penalty for refusing to cooperate with the program has been set at $5,000 per violation, he says.

Coleman urges cattlemen and auctions to be patient with the system while the national board's executive committee works on ironing out the wrinkles. "The recordkeeping will be simplified," he says. "Help is on the way."

He also encourages those with comments concerning checkoff procedures to contact him. The address is Pennsylvania Beef Council, 4714 Orchard St., Harrisburg, PA 17109. Phone: 717-545-6000.

at Europe's largest, most prestigious agricultural trade fair," Grubb said. These visitors will include importers from many nations. And more than 1,300 journalists. Grubb said the department has also arranged for Pennsylvania to be featured in an exhibit at the show's U.S.A. pavilion, and the department's export division and the companies involved will obtain valuable trade leads and contacts and will have an opportunity to test-market consumer appeal for a variety of Pennsylvania food products.

The Secretary said that the following companies will join the department at the 10-day show, which opens January 30th: Old Bookbinders, Colonial Beef Company, Rib-It and Federal Bakeries, all of Philadelphia; Hershey International Ltd., a division of Hershey Foods; Daniel Weaver Company, Lebanon; Honey Butter Products, Inc., Manheim; Wicklow—Breyers Ice Cream, Bensalem; and Horace W. Longacre, Inc., Franconia.

"Our participation in this show is a continuation of efforts begun by Governor Thornburgh to open more international channels of trade to Pennsylvania products," Grubb said. "Our pursuit of greater farm market sales is a part of a concerted effort by this administration to assure that agriculture remains a growth industry."

Another speaker at this convention was Robert Casey, the democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania. Casey made a short stop over on the Coupeiger trail between Harrisburg and Philadelphia.

Here's the text of his speech:

I brought with me my wife Ellen and my daughter Stacey. She is one of eight children. And I know that this organization and members of this organization are very family oriented people. We are very honored to be with you today.

Your organization is one of Pennsylvania's most important .....for rural and agricultural concern. Because this organization has been around since the mid 19th century, you know that tough times don't last, but tough people do. Certain tough organizations, groups such as your own, who are unafraid to take down a fresh interest and to stand up for what you believe is right. That's why I am proud to be here today.

Because I want to talk to you about some basic values that characterize our state ever it has been founded. There are values that we share. Values that we have in common. And values that I think are vital to the preservation and the future of Pennsylvania. I'm talking about hard work, dedication, courage and perseverance. I'm talking about family. I'm talking about dignity. These Pennsylvania graduates we share built this state. They made us the cutting edge of the industrial revolution. Later the crusifal in which the arsenal democracy was forged. They served us well. They are the strength of our past and more importantly the hope for our future.

I want to be the governor of the commonwealth for you and with you. And together with you and your values. The farmers who plant their own crop and milk their own cows, for the small business person who runs their own stores and call their employees by their first names, for working mothers who worry about daycare, for senior citizens who worry about health care, for the families who scrimp and save and still a little short at Christmas time. As you and the ..... know this is going right down to the wire. I just want to assure you that in my public career, I always try to work hard and to live up to the letter and spirit of my own profits to the people of Pennsylvania. And I'm ready once again to roll up my sleeves and get to work. I want to be a governor who has an open door and an open mind to the concerns of rural Pennsylvania. As governor, I want to represent your interest not only in Harrisburg but in Washington as well fighting to spear a great policy that treat our farmers and our rural interest with fairness and with openess.

The day has long past when the chief executive of this commonwealth can say I survived in the face of unfair foreign competition. But you have been more than just an agricultural organization. You've had the courage to stand up against toxic polluters. And as governor, I'll be standing with you. You've had the courage of standing up against the signing of a low-level, radioactive waste dump without public hearings. And as governor, I'll be standing with you. You've had the courage to stand up for funding for agricultural ways set asides. And as governor, I'll be standing with you.

As you well know, agriculture alone supplies one out of every five jobs in this state. But its influence goes even further. As one farmer told me, if you eat, you're into agriculture. This is probably the reason I can tell you I am very heavily involved in agriculture.

In a broader sense, one of the basic themes of my campaign has been the concept if we of Pennsylvania are a family, families stick together and they work together and they go into the future together. Most importantly of all, they don't leave anyone behind. That's the kind of government I want to be. Just as their are probably many reasons each of you in your own way decided to make your career in your life in agriculture and in rural areas of this commonwealth, there are many reasons why I have chosen public service.

But for me it all boils down to one simple basic concept. I entered this campaign because I love Pennsylvania and because I deeply believe that we can do better. I believe we have got to move forward and at the same time we cannot to leave billions of hard-working people behind. We've got to be tough, and we've got to be strong. But we've got to be compassionate. There isn't any challenge that we cannot master if we pull together. And so let us give our hearts and our health. And let us join together as a family of Pennsylvania. And if we do this, we will create a Pennsylvania as great as our people.

Cabin Creek Co-op Pieces Together Art, Income For Members

BY DEBBIE STILES-RENZI
West Virginia Correspondent

CHARLESTON AND CHELYAN, W. Va. — Over 80 West Virginia women (and one man) belong to Cabin Creek Quilts Co-op, a member-operated firm that is keeping the traditional art of quilting alive while providing extra money for those with limited income.

The co-op began as the project of a VISTA worker from Boston in 1970. VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) is a government program similiar in purpose to The Peace Corps.

Twenty-three-year-old VISTA volunteer James Thibeault came to southeastern West Virginia originally to work on pollution control; the area is a predominantly coal mining region. But the beautiful handwork he saw being done in homes he visited sparked the idea that eventually led to the formation of a co-op.

The co-op's sole purpose is to allow members to continue the art of quilting in their homes while giving them a profitable market for their work.

Five quilters made up the original organization. The number of members fluctuates, according to marketing person Sue Adams of Cabin Creek Quilts. From a high of around 150 women, there are now 85 to 87 quilters and piecers from 11 counties who construct a line of regular products. They offer fullsize quilts, women's and children's clothing, kitchen accessories, wall hangings, wreaths, dolls and Christmas items. The co-op also has a large custom order business.

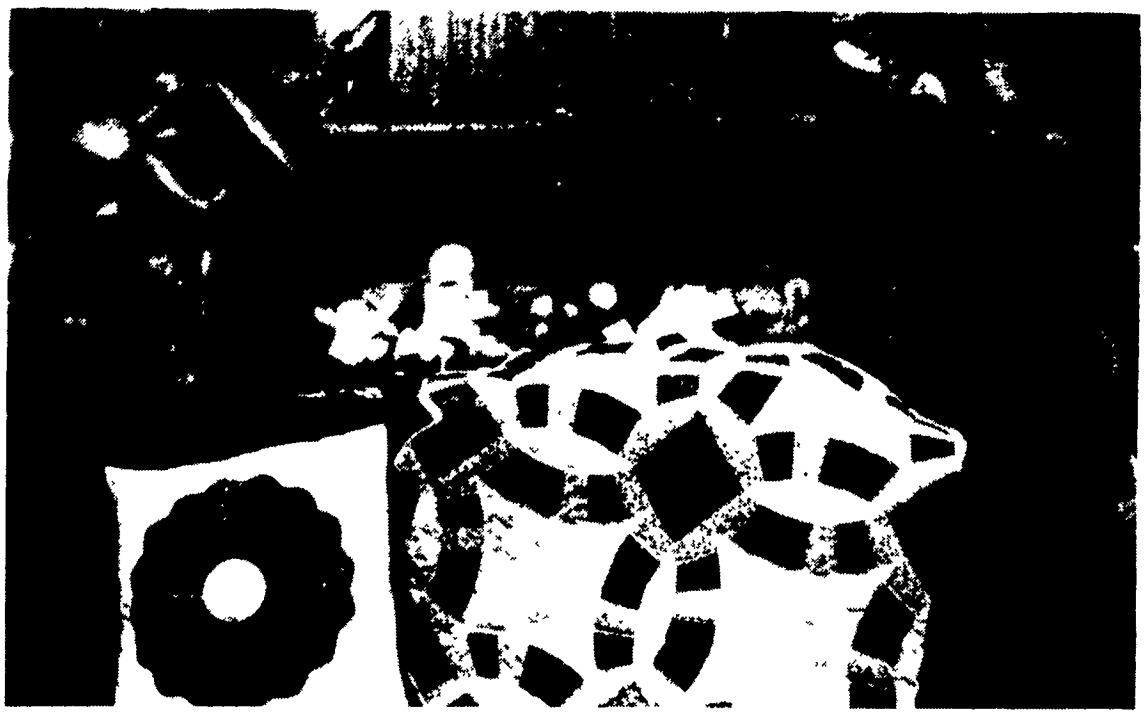
"We do a lot of special orders," says Sue Adams. These have included a Christmas tree skirt done in Wedgewood blues, completed this past week for a woman in the Eastern Panhandle, and a set of quilts for someone in the Carolinas who wanted original patterns created for her. Cabin Creek Quilts does not charge an extra fee for custom orders.

Product marketing is handled through several channels. Cabin Creek has a retail store located in Charleston, the state capital, about a 20 minute drive from the distribution center in Chelyan. Chelyan is across the Kanawha River from Cabin Creek, where it all began.

Products are wholesaled through Artisans Cooperative in Chadds Ford, Pa. and Match Co-op in Lexington, Ky. Sue Adams and a traveling helper, Charlotte Emswiler, promote and sell Cabin Creek through publicity appearances and demonstrations throughout the country.

"We do all sizes of fairs," she says. "Our fair circuit begins in spring and will go through December." They display 25 to 30 quilts at a show, on the average.

But theirs was a humble beginning. "When they (the persons who originally went to shows) first went out, they took a pick-up truck. Then when they had the van, they'd sleep in the van, covered up in the quilts because they couldn't afford to stay in motels to go to the shows."



An attractive wooden trunk holds Cabin Creek treasure: a Double Wedding Ring quilt, a pillow done in the Dresden pattern and handmade dolls.

Sharon Ford selects bolts of different-patterned blue fabric for placements at the Cabin Creek Quilts distribution center in Chelyan.

The co-op is now featured in some 30 to 35 shows a year in several states across the nation. Those in Florida are particularly successful, Sue reports.

One recent exhibition in Sarasota saw Cabin Creek completely sold out of small items, though they didn't sell one quilt.

Obviously, Sue noted, people in that area don't need warm bed coverings. But there was a large population of retirees from West Virginia and, "They all wanted a piece of home," Sue relates.

They also have a mail order business and were fortunate this year to receive matching funds from the Benedum Foundation to put out a full-color catalog, their first ever. The catalog is available for $2 from the distribution center, mailing address Box 383, Cabin Creek, W. Va., 25305.

The co-op has a full-time paid co-director, Judy Parcell, and a full-time worker at the Charleston store, Donna Aaroe. All others are part time or volunteers.

The co-op's members meet once a year for their annual meeting and quilting "bee," to elect officers and make changes in the by-laws. Otherwise, members work in their homes and send their finished products to the distribution center.

"We had about 75 here this year," says Sue, looking around and smiling at the modest block building with dimensions only slightly larger than a basketball court. "We set 'em up end to end," she says with a grin.

The co-op takes special care with its quilts. "Each quilt comes with a registration card telling who pieced it and who quilted it," Sue explains. "Most of the time we have the name of the person who bought the quilt " The exception is if someone purchases a quilt from a store where it was wholesaled to by the co-op.

Using the registration cards, the co-op can return a quilt needing repair to the person who originally did the work, so the quilting style can be maintained. "Each quilt is an individual work of art," she says with pride.

Quilters for the co-op range in age from teenagers to women in their eighties. "And we have one man who is a member," Sue says.

"The ladies each have something that they like to do," relates Sharon Ford, who also works at the distribution center. Some would rather piece than quilt.

When an order comes in to Cabin Creek, it is filled immediately if the item is part of the regular line. If it is a custom order or an item out of stock, the material for the top is sent to a piecer who

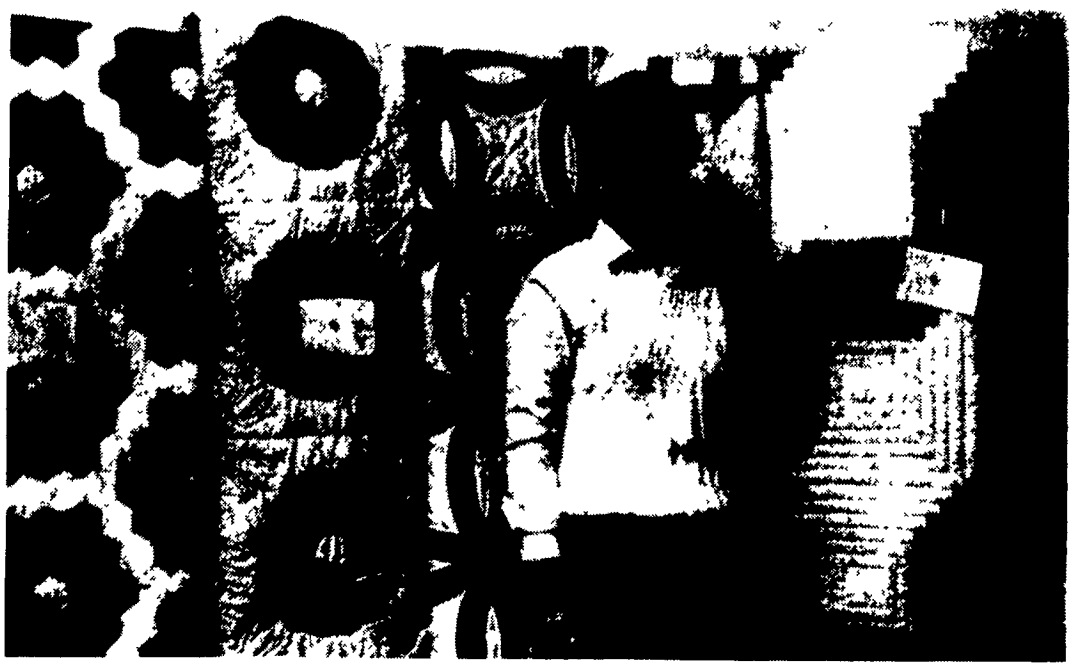
Sue Adams handles marketing at Cabin Creek Quilts, traveling around the country to exhibitions, fairs and festivals selling Cabin Creek wares. She stands in front of a "Lone Star" pattern quilt done in blues and parchment.



Donna Aaroe has worked full time in Cabin Creek's Charleston store for four years and quilted for the cooperative about a year before that. On display behind her are four member-made quilts. From left the patterns are "Dresden," "Double Wedding Ring," "Churn Dash," and "Log Cabin."

specializes in that particular pattern.

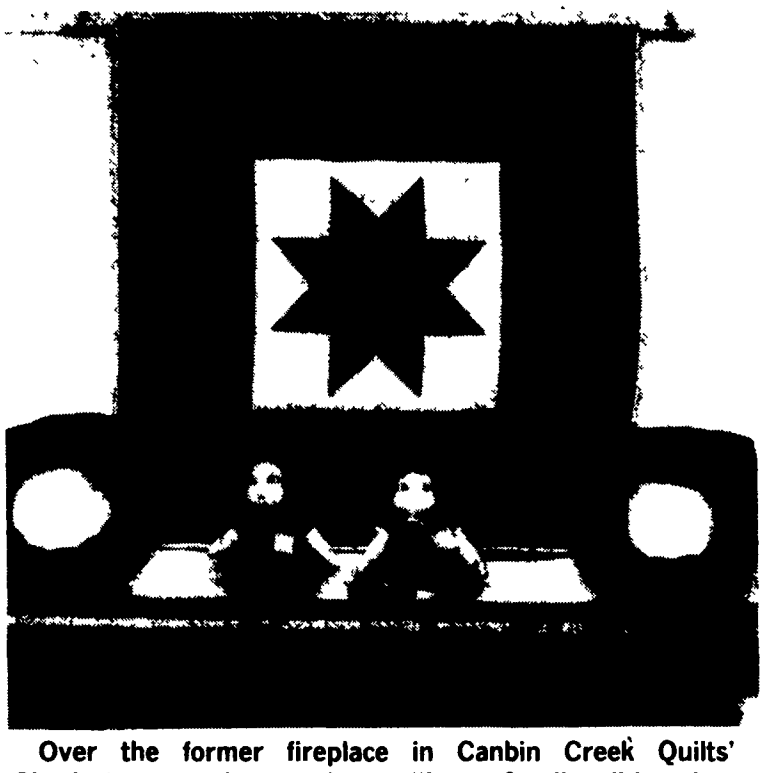
"Then it's mailed back to us and Sharon mails it (with the quilting materials) to the quilter," Sue explains. Work is inspected for quality when it comes in completed.

"Cabin Creek has a look," Sue says. She believes there is a regional difference that makes their products unique.

They've had only one major setback to their progress in the last 16 years; a fire completely destroyed their distribution center in 1976, totalling $30,000 in damages. But they came back from it.

Sue acknowledges the help of many donations in their recovery process. "A little lady from Georgia sent five dollars," she recalls. It was goodwill from folks like the woman in Georgia that built Cabin Creek again to the thriving business it is today, an organization that is the pride and model for other fledgling artisan and craftsmen groups of the region.

"It's working and that's the big thing," says Sue. "This is one dream that happened."



Over the former fireplace in Canbin Creek Quilts' Charleston store hangs a brown "Large Star" wall hanging. On the mantle below are two handmade dolls and two quilted braid wreaths done in fall colors.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Can it be November already? Hopefully the grass has been mowed for the last time this year. But now I must carry coal to the furnace hopper every day. I suppose I should be glad that work keeps me active.

My 120 houseplants are scattered on windowsills in 11 rooms all over the house. They take attention but it is work that I enjoy. Just now I have two miniature roses blooming on my kitchen windowsill. The one has a yellow flower and the other coral-pink blossoms. They could have been left outside in the winter but I do enjoy their blooms so much that I brought them into the house and hope they bring me joy all winter.

On some recent sunny Sunday afternoon, I've gone fishing in the Conestoga River while my husband rests in front of the television. He does enjoy watching sports events. At this time of year, there are many brown and yellow leaves floating downstream. The geese and ducks have multiplied and they too float gently with the current. Squirrels chatter and chase each other up and down the giant-sized ash trees. Muskrats scurry along the muddy river bank and pop into their holes when they hear me coming. And canoeists quietly paddle by on their way downstream.

My usual catch is a small pail of sunfish but occasionally I do catch some big catfish. Then I must ask Allen to skin them for me as I am only good at scaling fish.

Before I realize it, Sunday is over and Monday morning comes and with it an interesting job. I phone auctioneers to find out the prices of real estate, farm machinery, household goods and antiques. These are reported in "Sale Reports" in Lancaster Farming newspaper. As I said earlier, it is nice to be kept busy.

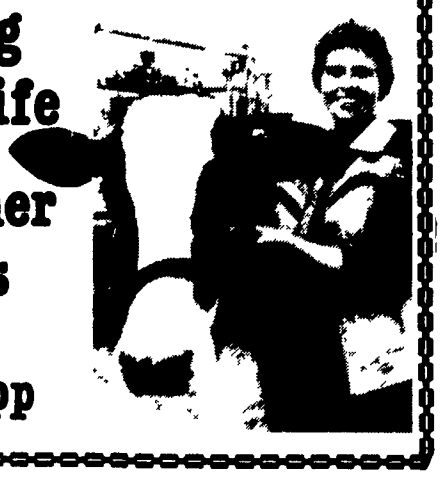
On being a farm wife - And other hazards



Joyce Bupp

There are days — weeks, even — during which I marvel endlessly at the luck and concern with which this household is continuously showered.

The showers of blessings of which I speak come in the form of deluges of mail, rained down upon our rural mailbox by our devoted and long-suffering rural postman, whose life is doubtless enriched by having been a part of the delivery of so much caring by those who send out "greetings."

Last week the showers were overwhelming in their attempts to improve our lives.

One really neat piece of mail came smiling. Really it did. Peeking through the clear window of this giant envelope were a few dozen bright, smiling faces. Stickers. Round stickers in red, green, yellow, blue. Stickers with wide-eyed faces, toothy grins, smug countenances and winking eyes. Made you feel good just to look at them.

The stickers stayed. The advertising for a children's magazine which was to greatly improve our offspring's lives was pitched. After all, our offspring are into hunting, running, cow and horse magazines.

But we argued over who would get to keep the stickers.

With the same shipment of goodies came an offer for me to attend a "minute management" seminar.

Goodness knows I could use some help in learning to manage. The minute that most needs management is the one in which everyone sweeps into the house before supper, bringing mud, manure, hay and straw, and undoes all the cleaning it took hours to do.

The real winner of the week, though, was the envelope that fell out of the mail stack with this message in big letters across the front: "The more wrinkles she gets the more beautiful she becomes."

Convinced that these greetings — at least the part about the wrinkles — was solely directed at yours truly, our son slashed the envelope and dumped out the contents. Which included a picture of a stuffed dog, related printed sales pitch of how stuffed, wrinkly puppies are a perfect gift and a headline promoting how "every wrinkle made her more desirable."

There are far more stuffed animals around here now than we need. In fact, there are usually two or three of them trying to run through the basement door whenever someone goes in or out.

I tossed the promo literature — but considered developing the headline into a rally song for those of us finding more and more wrinkles glaring back at us from the harsh reality of the mirror.

Even the telephone joins the mailman in bringing surprises to make our lives more carefree and at ease.

Consider the extreme luck — if you will — of the farmer last week. He won a burial plot. Ungrateful recipient that he was, he turned down the opportunity to have the deed presented in person at our front door.

After all, there was no guarantee that, if he tried it and didn't like it, he could never get it back and get a new location.

We surely sleep better at night knowing that so many concerned firms out there in big business land spend so much time, effort and money sticking their advertising noses into literally every facet of our personal lives.

If there were some way to redirect all that energy into such causes as pollution or hunger or world peace, we just might accomplish something worthwhile and lasting on this planet.

Prepare Chicken For Health And Flavor

On an average, each American eats 1,500 pounds of food annually. Last year, about 50 pounds of that was chicken, according to per capita consumption figures released by the National Broiler Council.

And it's no wonder chicken is gaining in popularity. It's low in calories and cholesterol and high in protein. And, it has special appeal for those who eat selectively to keep fit. For instance, a half broiler-fryer chicken, uncooked, has only 240 calories, yet it provides 42 grams of protein (the average adult dairy requirement is 60 grams).

Another important consideration in food selection is cost. Chicken in any form — whole or parts — is usually the best value at the meat counter. For those who prefer dark meat, thighs and drumsticks can mean additional savings.

But chicken isn't only good for you and your budget — it's fun to cook too! Check out the recipes below for a few ideas to try out on your family.

KAUILANI CHICKEN

4 chicken breasts, halved
4 chicken thighs
1 20-ounce can pineapple chunks
1 small onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
2 tablespoons mustard
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 cup catsup
2 tablespoons cornstarch, dissolved in cold water

Place chicken in single layer in buttered 10x16-inch baking dish. In saucepan, combine pineapple, onion, pepper, mustard, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce and catsup. Simmer 5 minutes, then add cornstarch. Cook until thickened. Pour over chicken. Bake, covered, at 350°F. for 1 hour or until chicken is tender. Serves 6. (Two pieces each.)

ANSWER - Bonnie Waltz Linden, requested a recipe for baked corn. Thanks go to Mrs. Stephen Stoltzfus, Strasburg, and Mrs. Mary Benner, Thompsontown, for the following recipes.

Baked Corn

2 cups canned or frozen creamed corn
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1½ tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 eggs

Mix all ingredients together, except add milk last Pour into a greased casserole Bake at 350° F for 1 hour or until firm.

Baked Corn

1 pint drained corn
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 eggs, beaten
1½ cups milk, heated
Salt to taste

Mix all ingredients together. Bake at 400° F. until top starts to get brown, then turn to 300° F. until finished.

Note: "I always set my dish in a glass pie plate with water in it while baking. This never gets watery for me."

ANSWER - Gail Redheffer Stull, Willow Street, asked how to keep mushrooms from changing color when cooked. Below is an answer from Mrs. Alfred Sharpless of Avondale, the wife of a past president of the American Mushroom Institute, Kennett Square.

"Wash quickly in pan in running water. Put in a stainless steel pan only without water (makes its own liquid) except for about 2 tablespoons and no salt. Cook on medium heat stirring often for 8 to 10 minutes — No longer! Drain and save juices. While hot, stir in salt, pepper and butter, if desired. The hot mushrooms absorb the flavor and will be tender. If cooked in salt, they get tough and leathery. If using for creamed mushrooms, also add milk, cream, juices and a chicken bouillon cube. Let set to absorb flavors before thickening.

Snowmobile Safety

Pennsylvania snowmobilers age 10 through 16 must pass the mandatory snowmobile safety course before they may legally operate a snowmobile in this state.

The required eight hours of instruction includes subjects concerning safe operation of the machine, dangers of hypothermia and proper clothing, trail riding, and trailering. All students are given individual instruction on handling a snowmobile on a grass track for the last part of the course.

Bring a bag lunch and a drink. Course starts at 8 a.m. and is open to adults as well. It will be held Saturday, November 15 at the home of David S. Auker, 140 Parkview Heights Road, Ephrata. For information and directions, call (717) 733-6387.

Caring For Clothes

You don't need to see the latest Consumer Price Index to know the cost of new clothes is going up. Even buying a pair of jeans today can strain the budget!

And, because new clothes are getting more expensive all the time, it's more important than ever to get the most wear possible from old favorites. Here are some tips on caring for clothing that can save you money.

When staining occurs, it's important to treat the problem as quickly as you can — immediately, if possible. It's helpful, too, if you know what caused the stain.

As a general rule of thumb, all protein based stains should be washed in cold water. Those include blood, urine, egg, milk, mayonnaise, gravy, meat juices, baby formula, cream and ice cream. Chocolate, fruit, wine and soft drinks also need cool waster.

Don't be misled into thinking there is no stain if nothing shows once the material has dried prior to any stain treatment. Some soft drinks and fruit stains, including citrus, become invisible when dry but turn yellow with aging or heating.

Ballpoint ink is another common, and tricky problem. Washing removes some types of ink and sets others. Cooking oils and grease splattered on polyester and then laundered can label a new blouse "old" in just one wearing.

Perspiration stains are another familiar factor in making good clothes look old fast. If perspiration has changed the color of the fabric, you can try to restore it, after washing, as follows: for fresh stains, apply ammonia; for old stains, apply vinegar. Rinse with water.

A few other points to remember. Black coffee stains are treated with hot water; if you like cream with your morning eye-opener, use a cold wash.

Finally, don't daydream about how good you'll look in your old wardrobe while you're touching up those "re-newed" stain-free garments on the ironing board. Severe scorch does not come out.

Lighten Your Load

If you are the "average homemaker," the experts say, you do 6.3 washer loads a week! Of course, you may be doing less, or much more. Those same time-motion-study experts say you spend almost 30 percent of your total household-chore time doing laundry. No wonder it's so high on the most-hated list. Not only is it such an incessant chore, but you don't simply launder when you do the laundry. You have to gather it, carry it, sort it, pretreat it, wash it, soften it, dry it, fold or hang it, iron it, and put it away.

I want to share the following time-saving laundry tips with you to cut down on laundry time and make the whole process a lot easier!

Buying new bed sheets? Pick a different color or pattern for each size bed, so sorting after laundering will be faster.

Wash dark things inside out, to keep right side from collecting lint.

Prevent tangling by buttoning shirt and blouse sleeves to front buttons.

Close zippers to protect them; fasten hooks to prevent snagging on clothes.

Brush lint from pockets and cuffs before laundering, to prevent it from getting on other wash.

Bulky items like blankets and bedspreads should be washed alone for best results.

Wash knits inside out to protect against snags.

Spray clean sneakers lightly with starch; it protects them from soil.

Save a wash by using your dryer to fluff and remove dust from shag rugs, sofa pillows, draperies and bedspreads, but hang or spread them immediately to avoid wrinkles.

Read labels and instructions, to be sure you are using the right amount of detergent; amounts can vary based on strength of formula, size of wash load, amount of soil and hardness of water.

Cozy Wood Fires Create Health-Threatening Pollution

DENVER — On a clear winter day in this mile-high city, you can see beyond the downtown skyscrapers to the low mountains of the Front Range, beyond them to the white caps of the 14,000-foot peaks of the Rocky Mountains, etched against the infinite azure of the western sky.

But chances are good that you won't even be able to see the foothills. They'll be lost behind the capital city's infamous "brown cloud," the smog layer that hovers 200 to 300 feet off the ground when weather conditions are right.

Causes Lung Diseases

It isn't just ugly, it's dangerous. Colorado is the nation's fourth-ranked state in deaths associated with chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases, according to figures compiled by the federal government. Such diseases include emphysema, chronic asthma, and chronic bronchitis.

Enter a new villain, unrecognized until the past few years: wood-burning stoves and fireplaces.

Cars remain the chief contributor to polluted air in Denver and most other cities. But it has been determined that as much as 18 percent of the brown cloud over the six-county Denver metropolitan area of 1.5 million people is caused by the residue from fires in an estimated 72,000 stoves and fireplace inserts and in 265,000 fireplaces.

The percentage of pollution from wood smoke is far greater in the narrow valleys of ski-resort towns in Colorado's high Rockies — towns such as Aspen, Telluride, Crested Butte, and Vail — and in New England winter resorts.

In Aspen, a town of 3,800 in a ski area that may grow to 30,000 at the height of the season, the 600-foot-thick cloud that engulfs the valley is blue, not brown, because it is 45 percent wood smoke, says Lee Cassin, environmental health officer for both Aspen and Pitkin County.

Missoula, Mont., with a population of 65,000, is another city with a problem. When warm air traps pollution-filled cold air in the 3,100-foot-high valley where Missoula is located, "it's a box with a lid on it," says Jim Carlson, senior scientist with the city-county health department.

"It's against human nature for people to think they contribute individually to a problem," says Steve Walker of the Albuquerque, N.M., Environmental Health Department's Air Pollution Control Division. A laboratory study has found that the sources of that state capital's brown cloud are divided equally between motor vehicles and wood smoke.

Fumigating Fog

"The thing I really worry about," Walker says, "is that when you go through neighborhoods at night, they're being fumigated with wood smoke. It reminds you of the fog in 'The 10 Commandments.'"

The health dangers from that smoke are now well-known. Not only does it contain carbon monoxide and other noxious gases, it also contains minuscule particles, some of them as carcinogenic as cigarette smoke, that find their way into lungs. The problem is felt most acutely in population centers where altitude is high and temperatures are low.

Ironically, use of wood stoves took off during the oil crisis of the 1970s, when wood was touted as an environmentally sound, economical, renewable source of heat.

Although some authorities say the craze probably crested in the late '70s, there are still an estimated 12 million wood stoves in the United States, and 800,000 new ones are sold every year.

Looking forward to a rigorous winter, Vermont store owner Dan Fraser stockpiles more than a hundred cords of firewood. In New England, as in the Rockies, Ozarks and other heavily wooded regions, wood is a renewable and plentiful heat source. But it comes with a price that goes beyond the per-cord cost. Wood smoke contains carbon monoxide, other noxious gases, and minuscule particles that rival cigarette smoke for virulence.

Health dangers and soaring wood costs notwithstanding, people continue to enjoy their wood fires. Robert Aukerman, a professor at Colorado State University, has conducted many studies on wood uses. Sixty percent of Coloradans burn wood for recreation, not heat alone, he says.

Moreover, he calculates that wood-burners are, in the long run, stripping the state of fuel faster than it can be replenished. "With the amount of wood removed each year in Colorado alone," he says, "we could build a wall two feet wide and four feet tall from San Francisco to New York — and back again."

Governments at all levels are taking action against the recently recognized dangers of wood-caused pollution.

Resorts Adopt Restrictions

Aspen, Telluride, and other resort communities have adopted tough restrictions on the number of stoves and fireplaces. Missoula has mandatory no-burn days. Denver followed suit this fall, becoming the country's largest city to adopt a mandatory no-burn policy.

Only two states, Oregon and Colorado, have passed laws requiring strict pollution-control standards for new wood stoves. Oregon's law took effect July 1; Colorado's will become effective next Jan. 1.

After six months of negotiations by representatives of government, industry, and environmental groups, on Jan 1 the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will announce nationwide certification regulations for wood stoves and fireplace inserts.

The new two-phase rules, to begin on July 1, 1988, will reduce wood-fire particulate emissions more than 70 percent in the fifth year and result in net savings to the wood-burning public of $29 million a year, EPA officials predict.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

An Old Fashioned Dessert With High Tech Speed!

A tender cake on top with moist pudding on the bottom...it's a teriffic combination!

The old fashioned name for this delicious dessert is a Sponge Custard. The more common name today is a Pudding Cake. By either name, it is a favorite dessert in our household. As it bakes, this dessert separates into a soft, pudding type bottom and a cake-like top. It makes an easy, delicious cake that doesn't need any icing.!

When you are used to a microwave's speed, you get impatient with the (endless) hour a sponge custard takes to bake in a range. So, I have tried for several years to get these recipes to bake properly in the microwave. But they just didn't work and I gave up last winter!

The problem has been that recipes for conventional baking usually separate the eggs, beating the whites separately, then folding them in to the batter at the end. When you do this, it doesn't bake properly in the microwave. The whites rise to the top and bake dry, leaving a gooey mess underneath.

We like these desserts too much to give up on, however. So, I tried again recently, with success at last! Try one, I hope you'll like it too!

For chocolate lovers, this rich dessert is heavenly!

Brownie Pudding Cake

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking power
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
2 tablespoons margarine
1 egg
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts, optional
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
1¾ cup hot water

1. Combine first 5 ingredients and sift into a mixing bowl. Set aside.

2. Put margarine in a 2-cup measure. Microwave on high for 45 to 60 seconds, until melted. Add milk, egg and vanilla and beat together. Stir into dry ingredients just until mixed, then stir in nuts if desired. Spread batter in a 9-inch round glass or plastic cake pan.

3. Stir sugar and cocoa together in a 2-cup measure. Add water, stirring to combine. Microwave on high for 5 to 6 minures, stirring once, until it boils.

4. Stir again, then gently pour boiling water evenly over cake batter. Leave uncovered and microwave on medium (50,5) for 14 to 15 minutes, until center of the cake tests done. If you are using a glass pan, check the center of the bottom. There should be very little uncooked batter there (a lighter color). Rotate the cake every 5 minutes if your oven cooks unevenly. Let stand to cool about 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Tip: It is important for these recipes for the liquid to be boiling when you pour it over the top of the cake. If it is not hot enough, the center of the cake will not cook in the times given.

For all of you fruit lovers, this makes a sweet ending for any meal!

Pineapple-Orange Pudding Cake

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
1 egg
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 8 ounce can crushed pineapple
¾ cup orange juice
¾ cup sugar

1. Combine first 5 dry ingredients in a mixing bowl. Set aside.

2. Put margarine in a 2-cup measure, microwave on high for 45 to 60 seconds, until melted. Add milk, egg and vanilla and beat together. Stir into dry ingredients just until mixed. Drain pineapple, reserving juice in a 2-cup measure. Press pineapple with the back of a spoon to drain it well. Stir drained pineapple into the cake batter. Spread batter in a 9-inch round glass cake pan.

3. To the reserved pineapple juice, add enough orange juice to make 1¼ cups juice and stir in remaining ¾ cup sugar. Microwave juice on high for 4 to 5 minutes, stirring once, until it starts to boil. Gently pour boiling juice evenly over cake batter.

4. Leave uncovered and microwave on medium (50,5) for 14 to 15 minutes, until center tests done. (Look through the pan on the bottom: uncooked batter will be a lighter color.) Rotate the cake every 5 minutes if your oven cooks unevenly. Let stand to cool about 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Tip: If juice starts to boil over at the end of the baking time, reduce the power to low (30,30,defrost) and microwave on low until the center is cooked.

Note: The times above are for microwaves with 600 to 700 watts of power; for 500 to 600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400 to 500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute.

USDA Home Economists Talk Turkey For Holiday Entertaining

WASHINGTON, D.C. – As the holidays approach, many of us are planning a traditional turkey dinner. But it's not easy getting the large bird ready for serving from its cold or frozen state.

Hundreds of new or uncertain cooks call the U.S. Department of Agriculture's toll-free Meat and Poultry Hotline (800-535-4555) for help. Here's how home economists answer some typical questions about preparing turkey.

Q. My grandmother says the secret to her tasty turkey is buying a fresh, not a frozen, bird. In my town, the stores are sold out of fresh turkey a week before the holidays. What should I do?

A. Buy a fresh turkey only if you can arrange to purchase it shortly before your meal. USDA microbiologists recommend cooking poultry within two days of the date of purchase. If fresh or thawed turkeys are refrigerated at home any longer than that, you could have spoilage problems.

If you can't follow this time frame, buy a frozen bird. Or bake your fresh bird soon after purchase, then carve and refrigerate it until your holiday meal. Cooked turkey (with stuffing removed) will keep in the refrigerator from three to four days. Stuffing and gravy (refrigerated in separate dishes) will keep one to two days. To reheat gravy, bring it to a rolling boil before serving.

Q. I've never prepared a turkey before. I have a 16-pound turkey in the freezer – how do I go about defrosting it?

A. A frozen turkey can be thawed safely in the refrigerator. An eight to 12 pound turkey takes from one to two days to thaw in a refrigerator; 12-16 pounds, two to three days; 16-20 pounds, three to four days; 20-24 pounds, four to five days. Large pieces of frozen turkey – a half, quarter or breast – take from one, to two days to thaw in the refrigerator.

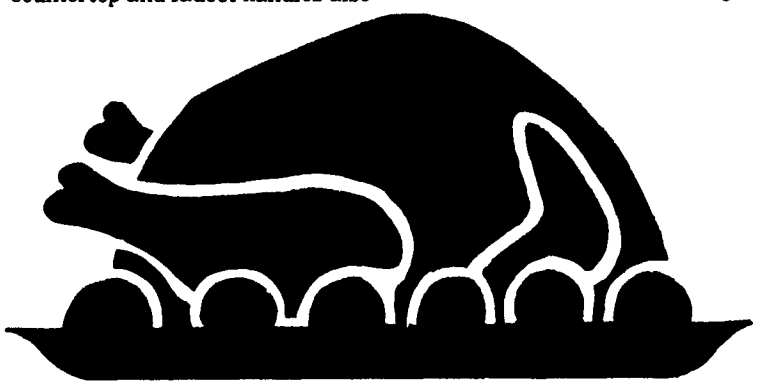
Another method for thawing frozen turkey is immersing the bird in cold water. Be sure the wrapping is intact. If not, wrap it in a plastic bag. Immerse in cold water in the sink or in a large tub Refill with cold water frequently – about every 30 minutes. An eight to 12 pound bird takes four to six hours to thaw in cold water; 12-16 pounds, six to nine hours; 16-20 pounds, six to nine hours; 16-20 pounds, nine to 11 hours; 20-24 pounds; 11-12 hours.

A faster way to thaw turkey is to use a microwave oven – if it is big enough. Follow the manufacturer's directions.

After it's thawed, wash the turkey under cold running water. Remove the neck and giblets and wash them, then wash inside and outside the bird. Drain thoroughly.

WARNING: Never defrost a turkey on the counter or table top. Bacteria multiply so rapidly at room temperature that the temperature range from 60° F. to 125° F. is called the "Danger Zone." In the hours it takes for a turkey to thaw, the surface bacteria could multiply to dangerous levels.

An remember, prevent the spread of bacteria during thawing and preparation by using plenty of soap and hot water to wash your hands, utensils and cutting board as you work. Wash the sink, countertop and faucet handles also – as well as anything else that comes in contact with the raw bird or your hands.



Q. How can I tell when a turkey is done?

A. A turkey should be baked for 15 to 18 minutes per pound. To test for doneness, insert a meat thermometer into the thigh near the joint. The turkey is done when the thermometer reads 180 to 185°F. Another test for doneness is to stick a long-tined fork into the inner thigh. If the juices run clear – no pink – the turkey is done.

Q. I'd like to make stuffing for our Thanksgiving turkey, but it's so time-consuming. Any short-cuts?

A. The fastest – and safest – method is to bake the stuffing in a separate dish, not inside the turkey. That way, you can mix it while the bird is cooking, and it will be baked in 30 minutes. An unstuffed turkey bakes faster too.

If you prefer a stuffed turkey, it is safest to stuff the bird just before pulling it in the oven. Otherwise, you run the risk of food poisoning bacteria multiplying in the stuffing. For that same reason, it's best not to buy a fresh bird that's been stuffed at the grocery.

To check stuffing for doneness, remove the bird from the oven and insert a thermometer into the stuffing. Wait five minutes, then check the temperature – it must reach at least 165 degrees F.

After cooking a stuffed turkey, scoop out the stuffing and serve it in a separate dish. Never leave the stuffing in the bird.

Q. I'm cooking the turkey for our Thanksgiving dinner to be held at my aunt's home 30 miles away. I'd like to cook it at home that morning. Would it be safe to do so?

A. Yes, but only if you'll be sitting down to eat the turkey within two hours after taking it from the oven. Also, you need to remove the stuffing after you take the bird out of the oven, and you must keep both bird and stuffing either hot or cold until serving time.

To cool the stuffing quickly, put it in the freezer. Then keep it on ice in a cooler until you can re-heat and serve.

Keep the fully-cooked turkey hot by wrapping it in foil, newspaper and towels. Put it in a large insulated picnic cooler or cardboard box stuffed with newspaper.

If you can't make it from oven to table in two hours, then prepare the bird in advance, slice, cool it quickly in the refrigerator and transport it in a cooler with ice.

WARNING. Never cook meat partially for completion of cooking later. Partial cooking provides ideal conditions for bacterial growth, which could lead to food poisoning.

Ornamental Gourds Are Perfect For Fall Decorating

NEWARK, Del. – Ornamental gourds are interesting relatives of the squashes. They are useful in a number of ways, but their most popular use is for fall and winter decoration, says University of Delaware extension garden specialist Dave Tatnall.

Gourds come in a great variety of sizes and shapes, with solid colors and combinations of orange, yellow, green, and white. Their descriptive names are interesting too – ball, egg, pear, spoon, dipper, bottle, dolphin, Turk's turban, and Hercules club, to name just a few.

Tatnall says to pick gourds from the vines when fully mature, and before frost. When ripe, the stems turn brown and begin to shrivel. Remove each fruit with a hand pruner, leaving a short stem piece attached.

Handle the fruits with care to avoid bruising and scratching. Wipe each fruit with a cloth dampened with rubbing alcohol to remove dirt and decay-causing organisms.

Cure gourds in a dry, airy place such as a screened porch, garage, or shed. Spread them evenly so they do not touch. Turn the fruits daily and discard any that shrivel or develop soft spots.

The entire curing process takes three to four weeks, says Tatnall. When completely dry, the gourds will have a hard, tough skin. Apply a regular floor or furniture wax, and polish with a soft cloth. Well-cured gourds will remain attractive for several months.

The fall and winter holiday seasons are ideal times for displaying decorative gourds. They are especially attractive in a fruit bowl, cornucopia, or in a loose arrangement on a table, chest, or mantel.

Count Your Blessings And Share Them With Us

As Thanksgiving Day approaches homemakers are busily planning their holiday meal, shopping for a turkey and contacting family members to make sure all will be present at the dinner table.

But pause for a moment from holiday preparations to consider the purpose of this national holiday – giving thanks to God. Too often we become engrossed in our daily struggles and spend more time complaining about what's wrong with our government, family and neighbors than counting the blessings that enrich our lives.

So take a minute or two from your busy schedule and jot down the things you are thankful for this Thanksgiving. You may be thankful for a crisp autumn day, the brilliant colors of a sunrise, a healthy body, a loving family or the opportunity to live in a free country.

But no matter what is on your list, we at Lancaster Farming would like you to share it with us. Please send your list of blessings to us for publication. We'll feature them in our pre-Thanksgiving issue on Nov. 22.

You can send your responses to Sue Keene, Lancaster Farming Newspaper, 22 East Main Street, Lititz, PA 17541 by Nov. 17.

Longwood Chrysanthemum Festival To Feature Wizard Of Oz Characters

KENNETT SQUARE – "The Wonderful Garden of Oz" will bloom at Longwood Gardens, Kennett Square, Pa., from Nov. 1 through 23. Longwood's magical garden will celebrate not only the 6th annual Chrysanthemum Festival, but also Oz author L. Frank Baum's longtime devotion to chrysanthemum growing and culture. Baum, creator of the classic Wonderful Wizard of Oz and 13 other books set in the fantasy kingdom, was so much a mum hobbyist that he was known to many as the Chrysanthemum King.

During the 3-week festival, visitors of all ages are invited to "follow the Yellow Brick Road" through Longwood's dazzling indoor display of 15,000 mums and step into the legendary Land of Oz where Dorothy, Toto, and all their beguiling friends come to life as growing green topiaries. In addition, the festival will feature special puppet presentations of "The Wizard of Oz" each Saturday and Sunday afternoon, a weekend Land of Oz buffet in the Terrace Restaurant, weekday demonstrations of fanciful fun foods for holiday entertaining, and a continuing display of competition scarecrows.

Daily hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and admission is $5 for adults, $1 for children ages 6 to 14, and free for children under age 6. To receive a complete listing of all events, send a self-addressed, stamped business envelope to: Chrysanthemum Festival, Longwood Gardens, PO Box 501, Kennett Square, PA 19348. For information, telephone 215-388-6741.

Gardeners at Longwood Gardens near Kennett Square have been patiently growing the Tin Woodman and the Cowardly Lion from plants. These and 16 other topiary favorite characters are in "The Wonderful Garden of Oz," the theme of this year's Chrysanthemum Festival.

"Frosty Milk Punch," submitted by Judy McQueen of Oil City, topped the appetizer/beverage category.

Miranda DeSantis of Pittsburgh won the top prize in the side dish category with "Fiesta Corn Chowder Ole."

The grand prize entree was "Shrimp and Scallops Au Gratin," submitted by Kristi Morris of Philadelphia.

Lynn Burger of Gilbert combined three vanilla-flavored dairy creames to create dessert winner "Angel Cream."

Four Grand Prize Winners Named In Dairy Recipe Contest

HARRISBURG — Four Pennsylvania gourmet cooks with a flair for the unusual have been named grand-prize winners of a statewide dairy recipe contest sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. The contest drew over 1,800 recipes during the June-July competition.

Winners were honored at a dinner for food editors and reporters that featured the blue ribbon recipes.

"Frothy Milk Punch" with a zesty blend of milk and fruit juices took the grand prize in the appetizer/beverage category for Judy W. McQueen, of Oil City.

"Fiesta Corn Chowder Ole," featuring a topping of sour cream and chopped chiles, won the top side dish award for Miranda De Santis of Pittsburgh.

"Shrimp and Scallops Au Gratin," the grand-prize entree, combines the best of the pasta and seafood worlds for winner Kristi Morris of Philadelphia.

"Angel Cream" dessert, sweet and creamy as its name implies, won the grand prize for former Guernsey cow owner Lynn D. Burger of Gilbert.

Grand-prize winners were offered the choice of $500 cash or a deluxe side- by- side refrigerator/ freezer. All chose the money.

Semi-finalists were awarded Sunbeam electric ice cream makers. They are:

Appetizer/Beverage — Dawn Bush, St. Marys; Mrs. W. R. Goshert, Akron; Marlene Myers, Sunbury; and Glenna Rohrbach, Henryville.

Side Dish — Doris Hagan, Houtzdale; Diane Miller, Hollsopple; Amy Leana Myers and Marlene Myers, both of Sunbury.

Entree — Noreen Cellerari, Wilkes-Barre; Anita Felix, Perkasis; John S. Pringle, Pittsburgh; and Alice Whitaker, Reading.

Desserts — Carol Gillespie, Chambersburg; Charlene Kline, Altoona; Angela L. Sieglitz, Lancaster; and Lois P. Stowasser, Brommall.

In announcing the winners for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, advisory board chairman Donald Duncan said, "Entries in our second-annual dairy recipe contest increased more than 250 percent over last year's first-time competition. We're pleased that people are recognizing the versatility of dairy products in menu planning.

"By using dairy products, residents of our state are enhancing the flavor and nutritional value of their meals and, at the same time, supporting the more than 14,000 dairy farmers in Pennsylvania."

Prominent newspaper food editors and culinary experts served as judges for the contest. Every prize-winning recipe was selected for its taste, eye appeal, ease of preparation and effective use of dairy products.

The appetizer/beverage category attracted a wide variety of delicious entries representing many current trends in American cuisine. Recipes ranged from refreshing all-natural milkshakes and eggnogs to creamy dips, hot and cold soups, and tasty finger foods.

Judy McQueen's grand-prize-winning "Frothy Milk Punch" combines a creamy base of milk and ice cream with fruit juices. An appealing party refreshment, this milk punch is also a cool, nutritious drink that may be enjoyed year-round.

"Fiesta Corn Chowder Ole" features a smooth combination of milk, cream cheese and creamed corn, but also calls for diced vegetables and crunchy bits of bacon. Each serving of this Mexican chowder is topped off with a dollop of pure dairy sour cream garnished with chopped chiles. To eliminate last-minute activities in the kitchen, this wholesome and calcium-rich dairy chowder may be prepared in advance and simply reheated before serving.

Recipes submitted for the entree category of this year's "Make It With Milk and Other Dairy Products" contest clearly reflected the current popularity of seafood and pasta dishes. Linguine, lasagna and macaroni recipes competed against clam, shrimp and crab specialties. The number-one-ranked Pennsylvania entree — "Shrimp and Scallops Au Gratin" — combined the best of both worlds. In this easy-to-prepare variation of a restaurant-menu seafood dish, scallops and shrimp are complemented by a creamy, butter-cheese sauce laced with cayenne pepper and brandy. Served over noodles or rice, this is an impressive, elegant and palate-pleasing entree.

Desserts traditionally feature delicious dairy combinations that provide cool, luscious and satisfying conclusions for meals.

Dairy Recipe Contest

Consequently, the dessert competition in the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's recipe contest attracted the greatest number of entries of any category. Following extensive and delicious deliberations by the judges, Lynn Burger's "Angel Cream" was selected as the grand-prize-winning dairy dessert. "Angel Cream" is truly a "heavenly" taste treat. Three different dairy creams are delicately flavored with vanilla and molded into a ring shape, which is filled with lightly sweetened fresh fruit.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is funded by state dairy producers and designed to increase consumption and marketing of Pennsylvania milk and dairy products.

"We hope that people throughout Pennsylvania will prepare and enjoy these prize-winning dairy recipes and will, in turn, be encouraged to share a favorite family recipe in next year's competition," concluded Dairy Promotion Program Chairman Duncan.

Roundup Champs Attribute Success To Parental Prodding

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

THOMASVILLE — In the behind-the-scenes confusion of moving gates, milling steers, and the chant of auctioneer Harry Bachman selling from the ring, York's top 4-H steer show exhibitors giggled and confessed their formula to winning.

"Our Dads made us get out and walk them."

Champion exhibitor Elizabeth Bishard and reserve winner Gail Rishel admitted to getting occasional parental prodding to exercise their project steers as they compared notes during the wind-up of the annual roundup and sale, held Tuesday at the Weikert's Buying Station.

But the prodding paid off for 10-year-old Elizabeth Bishard, who took the top bid of $2 per pound when she opened the sale with her champion. The 1,170-pound purebred Black Angus was purchased by the York area construction firm of Robert Kinsley, Incorporated.

Appropriately named "Banner," the winning steer had been bred in Kinsley's South Branch Angus herd and purchased a year ago by Elizabeth for her project work. A ration of oats, corn and hay, and regular walks, "about three times a night around the field," earned her the champion nod from Judge Lester Burdette, a Penn State livestock specialist.

Elizabeth is showing for just her second year in 4-H. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Bishard, York R10, and a fifth grader at Seven Valleys Elementary School. While Elizabeth already has a homebred calf started for 4-H project use, she plans to bank part of her more than $2,000 champion earnings, plus use a portion to invest in another steer.

A family bred and owned purebred Angus, weighing in at 1,245 pounds, claimed the reserve champion honors for Gail Rishel.

As the 13-year-old Seven Valleys R2 4-H member led her reserve winner around the ring, bidding went to $1.55 per pound, before going under the gavel to the Spring Grove National Bank.

Ms. Rishel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Rishel, and a third generation of winning Angus exhibitors. She credited regular walks of up to a mile and tying her steer out at night to improve his hair coat to help earn her the highest placing thus far in her five-year 4-H career.

Cathy Shive's champion lightweight entry sold to the People Bank of Glen Rock, which paid $1.30 per pound for the 1,145-pounder. Champion heavyweight, exhibited by John Eaton, Jr., went to Mary Beaverson, Wrightsville, for a 79 cents per pound bid.

The four reserve champion class winners followed in the sale order, with the lightweight bringing top price. Gordon Shive Insurance Agency purchased the 1,155-pound entry exhibited by Suzanne Bishard, paying an even dollar per pound.

Byron Waggoner's runnerup mediumweight earned the Dover youngster a 70-cents bid, going to Lancaster County meat retailer Willie the Butcher. Carl Erb, Abbottstown, was winning bidder on Karena Rankin's reserve light heavyweight, which brought 73 cents per pound. The reserve heavyweight, exhibited by Allen Werner, also sold to a 73 cent bid, purchased by show and sale host Robert Weikert.

The total 48 head in the annual roundup sale averaged 82 cents per pound with the champion price, and 78 cents without the champion.

For the third consecutive year, Lois Rankin of Abbottstown donated a cake which she baked and decorated to commemorate the champion winners. Auctioned prior to the steer sale, the yellow-and-chocolate layered cake sold for $40 to B and B Enterprises, a cake-buying syndicate of swine breeder Roger Bankert and auctioneer Harry Bachman. Proceeds from the cake went to help defray costs of the hospitality hour, held for buyers prior to the steer and lamb sales.

Elizabeth Bishard's purebred Angus swept the York 4-H Beef show Tuesday, then topped the sale which followed. Winning bidder at $2 per pound for the 1,170-pound "Banner" was Robert Kinsley, Inc. Representing the firm were Chris Kinsley, left, and Dale Rains, manager of Kinsley's South Branch Angus Farm, where the champion was bred.

One of the area's best known cake-buying syndicates, B & B Enterprises, bid successfully on Lois Rankin's yellow and chocolate flavored salute to 4-H roundup winners. With the creator of the $40 fund-raising cake are syndicate partners Roger Bankert, left, and Harry Bachman.

Trostle Wraps Up Roundup Career With A Champion

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

THOMASVILLE — For veteran 4-H'er Melissa Trostle, Monday evening brought the last roundup.

And the 19-year-old Red Lion member closed the gate on her last roundup in style, corraling the coveted grand champion market lamb award in her final county 4-H show, hosted by Weikert's Buying Station.

Melissa's purebred Hampshire wether, bred and owned, and reserve champion at the recent York Fair, topped the 4-H lamb sale which followed on Tuesday evening.

A spirited runoff in the bidding pitted Washington Boro meat retailer Willie the Butcher against the "610 Syndicate," a group of 4-H lamb club supporters. Auctioneer Harry Bachman orchestrated the action from the box, finally knocking off the champion to holdout Willie the Butcher for an even $4 per pound for the 120-pound winner.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Trostle, Melissa is currently employed in the Weis Market bakeries and plans to enroll in college. She is a member of the Pennsylvania 4-H livestock judging team, which will travel to the Louisville Livestock Exposition in November for national competition.

Melissa admitted that wrapping up her final 4-H year with the grand champion felt "wonderful." She exercised "610" with daily jogging and jumping routines. In addition to the champion rosette, Melissa earned a plaque for the champion, donated by sheep breeder and exhibitor Ed Keeney.

Following into the sale ring was the reserve champion, a 120-pound purebred Suffolk wether exhibited by Hanover 4-H'er Greg Bankert.

The Ron Trostle family jumped into the bidding action, holding out to buy the reserve champion lamb for $1.80 per pound. Trostle then donated the lamb back for resale, with the proceeds to benefit the state 4-H livestock judging team.

Glen Rock area builder Irvin Rappoldt bought Bankert's lamb the second time around, for $1.25 per pound, adding $150 toward competition expenses for the team.

Bankert purchased the project lamb, bred in the Shepherd's Crook flock at Newville, through a Shippensburg sale. He is 15 and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bankert, Hanover R3. Exercised regularly for proper muscling, the lamb "visited a lot of neighbors," according to Bankert.

Also auctioned off for the benefit of the livestock judging team was a five-pound leg of lamb, originally awarded to a winner in the team's meat-raffle fundraiser. Donated back for further fundraising, the leg of lamb brought $30 from top bidder, the Jack Myers family's Dunkard Valley Farms.

Champion lightweight lamb, exhibited by Jennifer Hoke of Hanover, sold to Garry Hoffheins of New Oxford. Weighing in at 90 pounds, the lamb commanded a price of $1.50 per pound.

Mediumweight champion, weighing 95 pounds, also brought a winning bid of $1.50 for exhibitor John Waggoner, Dover. Buyer was the Battlefield Builders Division of Gettysburg Concrete, Gettysburg.

Tina Shaffer, East Berlin, won the heavyweight class with her 125-pound lamb. Loretta Yohe of Wellsville was the successful bidder, at $1.50 per pound.

Weight class reserve champions were next through the ring. The 85-pound lightweight runnerup, shown by York 4-H'er Mike Sigler, went down to a $1.40 per pound bid to Peoples Bank of Glen Rock.

Thomas Meat Market, Shrewsbury, paid $1.25 per pound for the reserve mediumweight, a 105-pound entry exhibited by Tammy Flory, Red Lion, Jennifer Hoke, Hanover, also exhibited the reserve champion heavyweight, a 135-pounder which commanded the final bid of $1.25 per pound from Paul Worcester, Hanover.

A total of 49 lambs went through the year's final York County lamb roundup, judged by Tim Fleener.

Average price on the 49 head, including the champion price, was $1.17 per pound. Average minus the champion was $1.10.

Willie the Butcher from Stauffers of Kissel Hill bid the high price in the York County 4-H Lamb Sale Tuesday evening, paying $4 per pound for Melissa Trostle's 120-pound grand champion.

'Green Week' Participation To Enhance Exports To Europe

READING – State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb today announced a major initiative by his Department to promote export sales of Pennsylvania food products in European markets.

Addressing the Pennsylvania State Grange Convention, Grubb said the Department of Agriculture will lead nine Pennsylvania food companies to Berlin in January to participate in International Green Week.

"Pennsylvania foods will be displayed to a half million visitors at Europe's largest, most prestigious agricultural trade fair, including importers from many nations and more than 1,300 journalists," Grubb said.

The Department has arranged for Pennsylvania to be the featured state in an exhibit at the show's U.S.A. pavilion, and for exhibition space for the nine Pennsylvania companies accepting invitations to participate.

"The Department's export division and the companies involved will obtain valuable trade leads and contacts and an opportunity to test-market consumer appeal for a variety of Pennsylvania food products," the secretary said.

Joining the Department at the 10-day show, which opens January 30, will be Old Bookbinders, Colonial Beef Co., Rib-It and Federal Bakeries, all of Philadelphia; Hershey International Ltd., a division of Hershey Foods; Daniel Weaver Co. of Lebanon; Honey Butter Products, Inc. of Manheim (Lancaster County); Wicklow-Breyers Ice Cream of Bensalem (Bucks County), and Horace W. Longacre, Inc. of Franconia (Montgomery County).

"Our participation in this show is a continuation of efforts begun by Governor Thornburgh to open more international channels of trade to Pennsylvania products."

"Our pursuit of greater foreign market sales is part of a concerted effort by this administration to assure that agriculture remains a growth industry," Grubb said.

"The outgrowth of that effort to date is that agriculture is still the Commonwealth's number one industry, and Pennsylvania is the predominant agricultural state in the Northeast," Grubb said

Economic development and export divisions created in the Department by the administration are actively involved in helping the industry realize its full potential, he noted.

Grubb said efforts to increase Pennsylvania's share of foreign business will be intensified, with $300,000 in the current state budget to develop programs to involve more elements of the agribusiness community in exporting.

He said he was particularly pleased that five of the nine companies participating in Green Week are new to international trade. "They realize that the future of American agriculture lies in foreign markets as well as farmers' markets and will be carried out in many languages and currencies."

Little Things Mean A Lot

Ten pounds of silage, 200 pounds of body weight, 10 percent moisture and 10 gallons of water may seem rather insignificant, but these little things can mean a lot.

If I — or your feedman — were to ask you how much silage your average cow eats per day, what her body weight is, the moisture content of your silage (today, and a week ago) and how many gallons of water she consumes daily, chances are half of your guesses would be off by this amount or more. That's no way to run a big business!

No feed man can work up a good feed program based on such inaccurate information. Herd health, production, reproduction and your profits are apt to suffer.

Some of the most usefull tools on a dairy farm are also some of the cheapest tools on the farm. However, many times they are either absent or under-used. The tools I am referring to are scales, moisture testers, body weight tapes and water meters.

Take time to measure feed intake and attempt to measure feed refusal and feed wastage. Do this periodically and whenever there are changes in the weather, feeds, feeding programs, etc. Also check the accuracy of electronic weigh cells periodically. Calibrate silo unloaders by occasionally weighing the amount of silage in a section of the bunk.

Body weight is important because it helps to determine how much dry matter a cow is apt to eat and how much feed will be recommended. Body weights can also help you evaluate your heifer program.

Moisture content of haylages can vary from week to week. Do you adjust your feeding program to account for these changes in moisture content? You should. Are you sharp enough to pick up these changes accurately? Here's where a moisture tester is extremely valuable. It helps you fine tune your feeding program.

Are your cows drinking enough water. A water meter on the line to the cow stable can help you monitor intake. If feed intake is off, it may be related to a water intake problem. If water intake is off, it may be due to an inadequate water system (low volume well, too small pumps, too few water bowls, etc.), stray voltage, poor quality water, etc. A water meter could provide you some helpful clues.

Feed is the single largest expense item on most dairy farms. In our desire to cut feed costs, there may be the temptation to offer cattle less feed, to switch to lower quality or cheaper feeds or reduce the amount of certain ingredients in the ration. In doing so, we have to be careful that we do not shortchange animals of the nutrients they need.

Another approach is to help cattle make the best use of the feeds we offer them. Here is where proper use of the tools I discussed earlier can pay dividends. Offer cattle a balanced ration, and feed for high levels of efficient production. Notice that I did not say feed for the highest level of production. The highest levels may not be the most profitable but high levels of production are generally more efficient and more profitable than low levels of production. At high levels of production a higher percentage of the feed consumed is used for production (earns income); the balance is used for body maintenance and generates no income.

Keeps feeds fresh. Feed frequently — two or more times per day. Keep mangers and water bowls clean. Grind and mix feeds more frequently. Provide cattle easy access to a good supply of fresh water. Provide adequate bunk and water space. Group cattle by size and by needs. Consider feeding Rumensin to heifers. Sell cattle that are not worth keeping; don't waste good feed on poorer quality, cull cattle. Be selective in the heifers you save to raise as replacements. Control internal parasites.

Reduce feed wastage. Keep mangers and feed racks in good repair.

Paying attention to these little details can do a lot to help boost farm profits.

Penn State Hort Show Honors Holcomb

UNIVERSITY PARK — Opening the 73rd annual Penn State Hort Show last week at the Ag Arena, students announced that they have dedicated the show to Dr. Edmund Jay Holcomb, associate professor of floriculture.

"He has been a willing and supportive faculty adviser to many of our students," says Dr. Ernest L. Bergman, professor of horticulture and club adviser. "This dedication recognizes Jay's teaching, research and service to the horticultural profession as well as his dedication to student advising."

Holcomb teaches courses on horticultural plants and their environment, greenhouse management, and flower production including nutrition and flower arranging. He is also responsible for the graduate student seminar in floriculture and teaches in the popular two-year technical program in ornamental nursery management.

Holcomb's research includes efficient greenhouse fertilization, root environment for container grown crops and the effects of growth retardants on the production of greenhouse crops.

The Hort Show, which is constructed and managed entirely by students, has become a major event of homecoming weekend at Penn State. This year more than 25,000 visited the exhibits and sales area. Sales proceeds support student activities, field trips and scholarships.

Penn State's Ag Dean visits Mostardi's Greenhouse, Newtown Square. Examining poinsettia production are Jeff Jabco, Delaware County Agricultural Agent; Steve Mostardi, Mostardi's Nursery and Greenhouse, Newtown Square and Dean and Mrs. Lamartine Hood.

Farm Vote

Results of a recent PENNSYLVANIA FARMER Magazine poll suggest that rural voters could play a major role in the upcoming November gubernatorial election. Polls predict a neck-and-neck race between William Scranton and Robert Casey. A decisive vote in rural areas can tip a close count between Democratic-dominated urban districts and predominately Republican suburbs. So says an article in the October issue of the state farm magazine.

More than 840 farmers voted in a straw poll while attending Penn State's Ag Progress Days in August. The outcome was strongly Republican. GOP gubernatorial candidate William Scranton collected 639 votes (76%), compared to 204 votes (24%) for Democratic challenger Bob Casey. That's a three to one margin.

More than 800 ballots were cast on the most favored candidate to fill the U.S. Senate seat up for election. Very few farmers crossed political fences, says John Vogel, editor of PENNSYLVANIA FARMER.

Incumbent Senator Arlen Specter gathered 621 votes for 77% of the total. His Democratic opponent, Congressman Bob Edgar, drew 184 votes (23%).

Pennsylvania's 3.6 million rural population is the state's largest social segment. While farmers comprise just a small percentage of rural residents, eight of every 10 farmers registered to vote will do so. That's twice the state's average for non-presidential elections.

Conservation Society Honors 'Mr. No-Till'

UNIVERSITY PARK – Lynn D. Hoffman, senior research associate in agronomy at The Pennsylvania State University, was recently honored by the Soil Conservation Society in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Hoffman was one of nine to receive an "Honor" award from the society.

Nicknamed "Mr. No-Till" in Pennsylvania and surrounding states, he is the manager of Penn State's agronomy research farm in Rock Springs. He is currently researching crop management in conservation tillage production programs. Hoffman also serves as agronomy extension specialist for tillage and promotes the positive results of combining crop rotation with no-tilling.

Hoffman trained with the USDA Soil Conservation Service in no-till concepts. The award recognizes his promotion of no-till crop production throughout the northeastern United States.

GEHL® DOES IT ALL WITH... • TRENCHERS • SWEEPERS • TREE DIGGERS • TRACKS • BREAKERS • POST HOLE DIGGERS

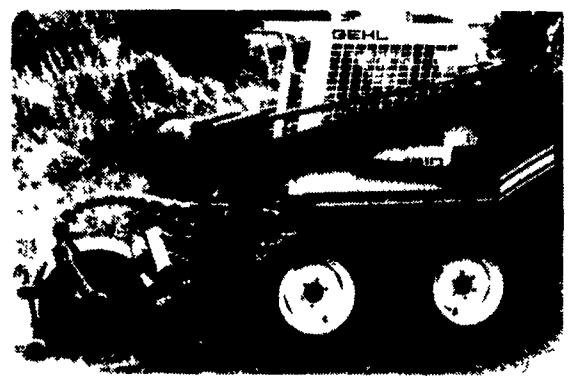
GEHL STANLEY MOUNTED BREAKER

Breaks concrete, rock, pavement and other hard surfaces.

Also can be used to cut asphalt, drive posts or for soil compaction.

GEHL'S High-Output auxiliary hydraulic system allows maximum breaker performance.

GEHL COLD PLANER



Controlled Pavement Removal

The Gehl Model CP400 Cold Planer mounts on a Gehl Model 4610 Skid Loader to provide a cost-effective way to remove the top surface of roadways and sidewalks prior to resurfacing.

The CP400 is versatile, effective and economical. It's designed for asphalt and concrete applications, with a range of drum widths and drum types available. Cutting widths vary from 2½" to the standard 16-inch drum. Cutting depth is adjustable up to four inches.

The CP400 is fast – it can cut up to 10 feet per minute. And because it's relatively quiet, it's ideal for use in pedestrian and residential areas.

And, to top it off, the CP400 Cold Planer attachment can be removed in minutes – leaving you with a rugged, reliable, easy-to-operate Gehl skid loader.

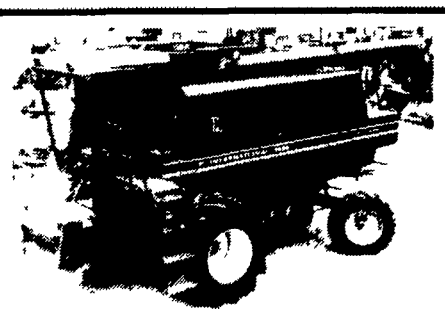
Because of the simple design of the CASE IH Axial Flow Combines, they can be reconditioned by Hoober's expert combine mechanics to like new condition, so they will provide 2nd and 3rd owners years of satisfactory and profitable operation.



IH 1480 Axial Flow w/Mudhog AWD, 14.9x24, 67.00x34.00 - 30 Tires, A/C, Monitor, Electro-Hydraulic Controls, Excellent Condition (U2034)

IH 1440 Combine, 28Lx26 Tires, A/C, Auto. Header Control, 1981, Only 968 Hours (U1866)

2nd LAW OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES

2500+ HOURS PLUS (+) HOOBER RECONDITIONING EQUALS (=) YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE.

2500+ hours on a conventional combine usually means too much trouble to be dependable. Axial-Flow Combines with 2500+ hours reconditioned by Hoober's have proven to run for years when bought by farmers in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

3rd LAW OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES

A CASE-IH AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE SERVICED BY EXPERT HOOBER COMBINE MECHANICS EQUALS (=) LITTLE OR NO DOWN TIME DURING HARVEST.

When Hoober's expert combine mechanics service Axial-Flow Combines in the off-season, they run trouble-free through the season.

Pork Checkoff Begins Today

DES MOINES, Iowa — The new national legislative checkoff for pork producers goes into effect today. All U.S. pork producers are now required to check off all classes of swine at a rate of .25 of one percent of gross value. For the first time, importers of hogs and pork products will also participate in the checkoff.

The nation's pork producers have had a checkoff program in operation for many years, but in most states it has been voluntary. Under the largely voluntary program, about 40 percent of the nation's pork producers were not checking off but were benefiting from the various checkoff support programs. Under the new program, all U.S. pork producers, as well as importers, are required to invest their fair share in industry programs and projects through the checkoff.

The new checkoff is expected to generate approximately $18 million annually, compared to the $10 million that has been collected under the largely voluntary program.

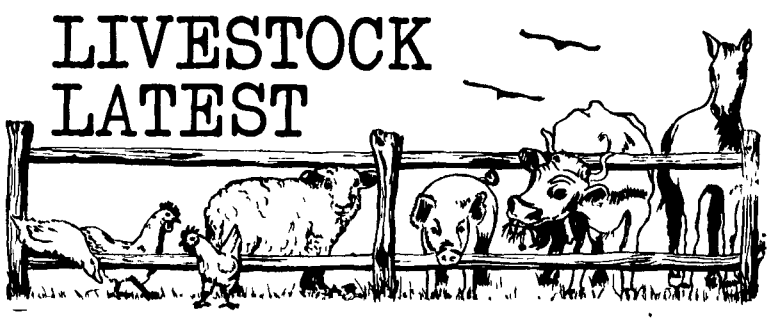
Under the new checkoff, hogs are assessed only once in each class (feeder pig, market hog or seedstock). Generally, markets (including packers and dealers) are responsible for collecting the checkoff, except in the cases of seedstock and farm-to-farm sales. In the case of seedstock, the seller or breeder is required to remit the checkoff. The new law requires the buyer to remit funds in farm-to-farm sales.

The new National Pork Board, whose 15 members were officially appointed earlier this month, will have the responsibility of collecting the checkoff and deciding how the funds will be dispersed. It is expected that the board will contract our specific projects and programs to existing industry organizations, including the National Pork Producers Council. The board is expected to hold its first meeting in early November.

The new checkoff was designed to generate additional funds for promotion, research and consumer information and that is where the bulk of the new funds are expected to go in order to provide the greatest return for producers by strengthening the position of pork in the marketplace.

A referendum of all pork producers will be held 24 to 30 months after the checkoff goes into effect. Until that referendum, pork producers will be entitled to a refund upon request to the National Pork Board. Refund forms are available from the National Pork Board, P.O. Box 9114, Des Moines, IA 50306, and from state pork producer association offices. Requests for refunds will be honored until 30 days after the month of sale. If the referendum is approved, no refund will be offered from that point on.

The National Pork Board has the primary responsibility of enforcing the new checkoff. Failure to comply with the collection requirements could result in fines of up to $1,000 for each unreported sale, and the payment of 1.5 percent interest per month on late payments.



Franklin 4-H Beef Club Holds Sale

GREENCASTLE — "Julius" a 1,285 pound Angus-Chi crossbred steer owned by Kurtis Meyers, 17, of Greencastle was named the grand champion steer at the 51st annual Franklin County 4-H Baby Beef Club's sale. Julius was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Seafood House of Chambersburg for $3 a pound. Hoss's also bought Dana Statler's champion lightweight steer for $1.03 a pound. They plan to donate this steer to the Chambersburg Area High School Band to be raffled off for the band's trip to Florida.

Reserve grand champion honors went to Nicole Lebo, 14, of Greencastle who showed a 1,230 pound Angus-Chi-Limonsin crossbred steer named "Ollie." Ollie sold for $2 a pound and was purchased by Grove Technical Training Center of Shady Grove. Nicole also placed first in intermediate fitting and showing.

The champion mediumweight steer was shown by David Sheiss of Chambersburg. This steer weighed 1,185 and was bought by Smith's Implements of Mercersburg for $1.08 a pound. David also placed first in novice fitting and showing.

Regina Lebo, Greencastle showed a 1,325-pound steer to win champion medium heavyweight division title. This steer was purchased by County Market of Chambersburg for $1.41 a pound. Regina too took first in fitting and showing in the senior division and was named the show's champion showman.

The heavyweight champion title was won by Donnie Sheiss of Chambersburg with a 1,320 pound steer. This steer was also purchased by County Market for $1.25 a pound. Donnie placed first in the junior fitting and showing classes, and was also named champion fitter of the show.

Two highlights of the sale came when two area businesses donated the steers they had bought back to the club to be resold with the proceeds going to the club.

Roy Rogers Restaurant purchased Steve Clapsaddle's 1,040 pound steer for 87 cents a pound and resold it for the club for 81 cents a pound to the AC&T Company of Hagerstown.

The second steer donated back was purchased by Red Pensinger's State Farm Insurance Agency of Greencastle. They purchased Darren Meyers' 1,165 pound steer for 84 cents a pound. This steer was resold by the club to Hick's Chevrolet-Volvo for 79 cents a pound.

The club had a very successful sale with the steers averaging $1.11 a pound.

Grand champion steer at the Franklin Co. 4-H Baby Beef Sale was shown by Kurtis Meyers. Nicole Lebo had reserve.

7 States Nominate Bulls To New York Test

ITHACA, N.Y. — Sixty five beef cattle breeders from seven states have nominated their top young herd bull prospects to the 1986-87 New York Bull Test.

The enrollment for this bull "Class of '87" includes 40 Polled Herefords, 26 Angus, 19 Simmentals, seven Charolais, three Red Angus, two Limousins, one Santa Gertrudis and one Salers. The nominated bulls come from herds in New York, Connecticut, Maryland, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

The 140-day uniform, unbiased test program to measure and evaluate the young bulls will be conducted at Cornell's Livestock Teaching and Research Center at Harford. The official test period will begin Nov. 24 and end April 13.

The test program will conclude with the annual Bull Test Sale May 2.

Information about the Bull Test may be obtained from William Greene, 130 Morrison Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. 14853.

The Value Of A Bull

Perhaps this is not the time of year when most area cattlemen consider their bull needs for the 1987 breeding season. But, maybe it's a good time to plan ahead considering the favorable outlook of the beef cattle industry for the next few years. Red meat supplies are dropping, feed costs have plummeted, interest rates are lower, energy costs are lower, and inflation remains at a lower level, all positive factors for the cattle feeding industry. The potential to place a large number of animals on feed is real and the preceding factors will encourage cattle feeders to competitively bid for feeder animals this fall and winter.

To take advantage of this upturn in the cattle business, cow/calf operators should be interested in helping themselves from a genetic standpoint, an opportunity to boost their productivity by the use of high quality bull power. Obviously the use of artificial insemination and the wide selections of sires available from breeders and bull studs would be an appropriate approach to this genetic boost if you select semen from bulls with highly accurate EPD's (expected progeny difference) or EBV's (estimated breeding values).

It has been proven many times the additional pounds you can add to your weaned calf crop by going this route. Most cattle are still sold by the pound; it only makes sense to take advantage of this lesson. By using bulls with highly accurate EPD's or EBV's you can also do yourself a favor in selecting for calving ease and maternal ability.

Not everyone utilizes A.I. technology, and of those who do, not everyone achieves 100 percent success with conception. What happens to all the cows who do unsettled by A.I. or embryo transplant? Must they be culled from the herd? From a management standpoint, narrowing your breeding season and limiting your calving season to less than 90 days (less than 60 is even better) makes sense economically considering labor savings, feed savings, and marketing proficiency.

The need for a natural herd sire becomes important in shortening the calving season. Perhaps you are achieving an 80 percent. A.I. conception rate or are using natural herdsires exclusively. Is it not also important to use high quality bulls as natural herdsires? Maybe your selection is limited as compared to the selection of A.I. sires, however by the use of sire summaries and performance data your choice of a natural herdsire can be more scientific and accurate.

Consider that one major beef breed association has just completed a sire evaluation report analyzing over 32,000 bulls. Their final listing entails data from 1193 bulls currently in use in the United States today, as well as, a list of 1298 young sires with EPD projections. Surely from reports like these a commercial cow/calf producer should be able to make some sound decisions when selecting his next herdsire. Indeed, you certainly want to consider your bull prospect's individual performance and physical appearance in your final analysis. There are many good sons of progeny proven bulls with stacked pedigrees that can make a financially positive difference for you.

The following illustrations should sell you on the use of sire evaluation information. Fleetwood Farms in Delaplane, Va. has recorded weaning weights during a 13 year period from 1970-1983. An average of 630 calves were born annually in this herd, with the average weaning weights increasing from 346 pounds to 461 lbs. from 1970 to 1983. With the use of A.I. and sire evaluation summaries, Fleetwood Farm invested $23,639 in semen over a 12 year period. Can this be money well spent? By considering the increased value of the 1983 calf crop over the 1970 group we can calculate increased value as $50,715. (Number of calves born, 630, multiplied by the difference in weaning weight, 115 lbs., times a price per pound of 70 cents. Now consider the following illustration in regards to sample herd bulls "A" and "B".

I hope all of this gives you something to think about over the winter and I hope you will do some of your own research and preparation before purchasing your next herdsire. It can certainly be economically positive!

THE WORTH OF A BULL

ASSUMPTIONS

1. Herd size- 60 commercial cows
2. Use 2 bulls- named "A" and "B"
3. 95% calf crop
4. All calves are sold at 300 days of age
5. Use bulls for 6 years
6. Feeder calf price = $70/cwt.
7. Bull "A" sires calves that gain 2.0 pounds per day of age
8. Bull "B" sires calves that gain 2.5 pounds per day of age

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE IN RETURN TO THE COMMERCIAL CATTLEMAN?

300 days x 2.0# WDA x $.70/cwt x 28 calves x 6 years =
$70,560- return from bull "A"

300 days x 2.5# WDA x $.70/cwt x 28 calves x 6 years =
$88,220- return from bull "B"

THE SIMPLE DIFFERENCE IS $17,640

If 25% of the females are retained as replacements the difference is $13,230.

Farm Industry Leaders Look To '87 With 'Guarded Optimism'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Lower interest rates, declining energy costs and the continued drawdown in the dollar's value may help to deliver a modest boost to farm equipment sales in 1987, according to some equipment industry executives.

In industry outlook statements prepared for the 93rd Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute Annual Convention at the Opryland Hotel, several chief executives expressed cautious optimism, noting that farm equipment sales for 1986 "may have neared the bottom," and might give way to some sales increases in 1987. Other executives, however, continued to predict "more of the same," depressed sales for 1987.

Jerome K. Green, president and chief executive officer of J I Case Co., predicted a modest sales increase for 1987, with sales of under-40 hp tractors leading the way. He cited stabilizing land values, the "continued weakening of the dollar," lower energy prices and lower interest rates as reasons for his predictions. Mr. Green will assume the Institute chairmanship for 1987 on November 1, 1986.

"Industry consolidation," Green said, "...will help remove excess manufacturing, sales and production capacity from the North American market and enable all market participants to return to stability and profitability in the years ahead."

Robert C. Lanphier III, president and chairman of the board of DICKEY-John Corp. and FIEI's outgoing chairman, said: "Farm equipment sales have bottomed out and will pick up gradually over the next four years as the amount of good equipment available at auctions declines. As foreclosures of operators with good equipment diminish, this will begin to reflect in sales in the last half of 1987."

Deere & Co. President Boyd C. Bartlett forecasted that sales will stabilize at 1986 levels in 1987. "Planted and harvested crop acreage in 1987 is likely to decline from 1986 in order to slow or prevent further buildup of high agricultural commodity stocks. Farmers next year may require fewer purchased inputs, and some inputs may decline in price. Their incomes, however, will be largely maintained by government payments."

To J.A. Foster, Ford Tractor Operations marketing manager for North American sales operations, agricultural "overcapacity" remains "a vexing problem" for the farm equipment industry. "We see the farm equipment market bottoming out in 1986, with some equipment market segments to take place during 1987." The effects of 1985 Farm Bill policies and expected improvements in farm liquidity could bring across-the-board sales increases in late 1987 and early 1988, Foster predicted.

Roy W. Uelner, president, Deutz-Allis Corporation, called 1987 "a year of transition" because of favorable trends among many of the factors which have contributed to lower equipment demand in the past. "Overall, the positive and negative factors are balanced slightly on the positive side." Though Mr. Uelner predicted sales of under-100 hp tractors would increase, he expected sales of larger tractors and combines to remain flat.

Robert N. Spolum, president, Melroe Co., labeling his 1987 outlook "stoical." Weak agricultural commodity prices and the likelihood of cutbacks in government price supports, does not auger any major improvement in the farm economy, he said. "The farm economy will not move from its 1986 level; therefore, we expect equipment sales in 1987 to be no better than the 1986 level."

The lower dollar may pay off the late 1987 in increased competitiveness on overseas markets, according to Hesston Corp.'s president and chief executive officer Mario Chessa. However, an atmosphere of uncertainty surrounding the effects of changes in farmland values, lower commodity prices and the new tax laws will dominate most of 1987, Mr. Chessa said.

Although Massey-Ferguson Inc. president John H. Ruth said his company sees 1987 as a "no growth" year, he predicted industry restructuring will bring sales and production into balance by the end of the year. "The mergers, consolidation, and downsizing which have taken place over the past six years, plus the fact that the industry reduced its inventory levels over the last 12 months leaves me with an optimism for sales with small profits."

Gerald B. O'Meara, manager, FMC Corp. Agricultural Machinery Division, projected 1987 sales "to be flat with 1986 sales. Some market areas, such as the Midwest, will probably be below 1986 levels. Service and repair continues to be strong for both 1986 and 1987."

Gehl Co. President Bernard L. Nielsen noted that though farm equipment sales hit "rock bottom" in 1986, "it is unrealistic to expect any upturn in 1987." The majority of farmers will "continue to face difficult and changing conditions...their inclination to purchase equipment will be inhibited," Nielsen said. Nielsen predicted stronger sales in particular equipment sectors, yet added, "the sale of agricultural equipment will continue to be negatively impacted by the relatively lackluster status of the economy within agri-business."

The president of the FIEI Farm Equipment Division, Joseph J. Lund, president, Farmhand, Inc., summed up his predictions for 1987 thus: "There is little to make me think that 1987 will not be more of the same. Attitudes have gotten a bit better and some segments are doing well (hogs). However, the credit situtation has not improved and will continue to depress equipment sales."

Falling land values will continue to affect farmers' purchasing power, James T. Muraski, president, Stolper Industries, Inc. contended. "We forecast no major recovery in the agriculture economy and thus see no reason to believe that equipment sales will dramatically increase. I believe we are creeping along in the trough of a period of low demand," Muraski said.

Kubota Tractor Corp. predicted "little or no improvement" over 1986 levels for most equipment categories, with the exception of the under-40 hp tractor class. The under-40 agricultural tractor category should show a 5 percent sales increase in 1987 and consumer products-related businesses should turn in a strong showing as well, according to Kubota's outlook.

1987 could bring a repeat of the record-setting 1986 grain surplus which filled all permanent storage structures, said Larry D. Hayes, president of Butler Manufacturing Company's Agri-Products Division, a manufacturer of grain storage and handling equipment. But if grain production is reduced in response to changing government programs, the demand for storage structures could decline greatly, he said. He predicted sales to approach 1983-84 levels, down 60-80 percent from 1986 levels.

"Continued stormy weather" described James E. Munger's preductions for 1987. Munger, president of Farm Fans, Inc. Munger anticipated a decline in the U.S. grain storage and aeration business from their robust 1986 sales. Though he did not believe U.S. industry sales would improve for 1987, he predicted improved sales for individual companies which take advantage of export opportunities the dollar's decline offer.

Murray Thorndycraft, president, Badger-Northland, Inc. noted several "vital signs" for 1987 sales: lower interest rates, low manufacturers' inventories, land price stabilization. He concluded: "There is a case for a small sales up-tick in 1987 but profitability will be the challenge in a marketplace that still has too many manufacturers and vendors in relationship to the producers with money to buy."

John E. Love, president of J.E. Love Co., expressed "cautious guarded optimism" for 1987. "I do not foresee any great change in the current course of the agricultural economic sector," he added.

Continued dairy industry restructuring will overshadow

Friends of Agricultural Land Preservation

Only if you care! . . . Care enough about Lancaster County's future; about the unique character and heritage we enjoy, about the diversity and health of our economy and about the quality and beauty of this countryside, then support Friends of Agricultural Land Preservation.

"Friends" is a unique private non-profit organization devoted to the voluntary preservation of our most productive agricultural lands in the context of sound community planning and guided growth and development and in public-private partnership with the Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board.

Lancaster County is a dynamically growing metropolitan county beginning to suffer the ills of many larger metropolitan areas — disappearing farmland, suburban sprawl, traffic congestion, flash flooding and overcommercialization. But . . . as we mature as a community we have an opportunity . . . an urgent opportunity both to guide growth and to protect and preserve our most important farmlands through hard work, commitment, careful public policy and private land preservation dollars. "Friends" looks to the hearts of Lancaster Countians and the time is NOW. The next generation may be left with too few choices.

By December, 50 farms will have been saved for future generations through voluntary commitment, technical assistance, tax incentives, heart-felt love for the land and THE LANCASTER COUNTY AGRICULTURAL LAND PRESERVATION FUND, supported by "Friends". But Lancaster County's 5000 farms are under both on-farm economic pressure and outside development pressure. Saving the best farmland is our generation's challenge.

We, the members and Board of Directors of "Friends" urge your support . . ., your commitment to a future Lancaster County that we and our children can cherish as home.

Please Care . . . Farmland Preservation . . . It's Worth It

New Mortgage Programs

There are many reasons why the Farm Credit Service is Pennsylvania's largest farm real estate lender. One of the primary reasons is its ability to offer innovative lending programs geared to the unique needs of individual agricultural producers. Now, in direct response to the need for stability and certainty of interest rates, the Farm Credit Service has introduced an adjustable rate mortgage and a fixed rate mortgage loan program.

Both programs offer sound alternatives to Farm Credit's standard 30-day variable rate which is subject to change on a monthly basis.

By contrast, borrowers can lock in an attractive interest rate for 3, 5, 10, or 15 years with Farm Credit's new ARM program; the term may be as long as 40 years. Similarly, the fixed-rate program allows borrowers to lock in a fixed interest rate, with loan amortizations to match for 5, 10 or 15 years.

While there is a loan fee to enter either program, most borrowers can recoup this cost in the first year from the interest savings. At roll over time, or when the 3, 5, 10 or 15 year term of the ARM is up, the borrower has a number of options. He can apply for continued participation in any special loan program available at that time (at the prevailing rate), revert to the 30-day variable rate, or pay off the loan with no prepayment penalty. If no application for a change or no payout is made, the loan automatically reverts to the 30-day variable program.

In the case of the fixed-rate program, the amortization is matched to the 5-, 10- or 15-year term, so the loan is automatically paid out.

For those borrowers who do not wish to convert to one of these programs or who are not eligible to participate, the Federal Land Bank is pleased to announce the reduction in the interest rate charged under the 30-day variable rate program. The new interest rate charged on farm and rural home loans will be 10.75 percent effective Nov. 1, 1986.

The flexibility of all the loan packages offered by the Farm Credit Service reflects their commitment to meet the changing needs of Pennsylvania's agricultural community.

Rush Named PAFC President

YORK – Jay V. Rush, President, York Farm Credit Service was elected director of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives at their annual meeting.

The Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives, organized in 1933, is a trade association representing 40 rural and agricultural cooperatives that operate in the Commonwealth.

Rush, a native of Washington County, Pennsylvania has been employed with Farm Credit since 1973. Prior to his employment with Farm Credit Service he managed his family's 100-cow dairy operation. He received a B.S. degree in ag mechanization from Penn State in 1968.

The York Farm Credit Service presently provides over $77 million in long-term Land bank loans to 1200 borrowers and $35 million in short term Production Credit Association loans to 861 borrowers in South Central Pennsylvania.

Case IH Mid-Size Tractors Offer Large Tractor Features

RACINE, Wisc. – The new Case IH 85 Series general purpose, intermediate horsepower tractors are designed to meet a farmer's primary and secondary tractor needs with operational features usually associated with larger tractor models.

The Models 385, 485, 585, 685 and 885 tractors are ideal for general utility purposes and for medium-sized livestock and farming operations, including orchards and vegetable farms. The manufacturer's estimated gross engine horsepower is 35, 42, 52, 62, and 72 respectively.

Center Line MFD

The center line mechanical front-wheel-drive, available on all 85 Series tractors, features a new center drive shaft to the front axles and a new electrically-activated hydraulic engagement for increased productivity and efficiency. In addition, the center line MFD features a limited slip front differential that is coupled with a differential lock at the rear. This differential and differential lock combination helps provide equal traction on all wheels in adverse ground conditions.

The new Center Drive MFD also allows a 50-degree front wheel turn angle, a convenience in headlands and close-quarter maneuvering. The MFD provides increased tractive efficiency, fast working field speeds, and increased engine and transmission utilization while transporting.

More Speeds with Power Shift

A major challenge in farming operations is working in variable field conditions. To help overcome these conditions, the Model 885 tractor has, as standard equipment, a new electrically-actuated two-speed power shift transmission that can reduce tractor ground speed by 20 percent, allowing the tractor and implement to work more efficiently in difficult and varying field conditions. The power shift also assists in controlling the inputs flow into a PTO machine such as a hay baler.

Cab Designed for Comfort

Case IH state-of-the-art cabs enhance operator comfort to help keep productivity high. Cabs are available on Models 585, 685 and 885 tractors.

In the Case IH cabs, transmission levers are conveniently set to the left and hydraulic levers to the right of the steering wheel to facilitate operation.

Seats in all 85 Series cabs are placed in front of the rear axle, smoothing the ride, putting the operator closer to the steering action and improving operator comfort and productivity. The seats are four-way adjustable with a comfort-enhancing fabric covering.

Heat and air conditioning are standard. The cabs offer two doors for easier access, a particularly important feature for dairy farmers and in smaller farming operations.

Improved Efficiency

Hydraulic pump capacities have been increased on 85 Series tractors for faster and more versatile operation of hydraulic equipment. A new system of up to three remote hydraulic valves is available on Models 585, 685 and 885 tractors for greater versatility in equipment handling.

Features which enhance productivity and convenience include an easy-off grille for quick servicing; easily adjustable front axles; hydrostatic power steering; fuel-efficient diesel engines with quick response and high torque rise; long-lasting clutches; large fuel tank and built-in ether starting system to ensure fast starts in cold weather.

Quick Detach Loader

The Model 2255 front end loader is designed to work with the Models 585, 685 and 885 2WD tractors and Models 485, 585, 685 and 885 MFD tractors.

When using the Case IH Model 2255 Mount-O-Matic front end loader, operators will find the loader is much easier to mount and dismount than conventional loaders. This feature enables farmers to quickly and easily change from loader choring to field work.

New Dodge Dakota Is Mid-Size Alternative

DETROIT — Dodge has expanded its lineup of rugged Ram Tough pickups, wagons, vans, and sport utility vehicles for 1987 with the addition of the new mid-size Dakota.

The Dakota pickup is larger than import or domestic compact models, smaller than full-size pickups but with the ability to handle a 2,550 pound payload and sporty appearance for personal use.

Official introduction of the new Dakota two-wheel drive pickup in dealer showrooms was October 2. Production of the four-wheel drive Dakota begins in October.

Available in two wheelbase and three price classes, Dodge Dakota, with its combination of standard and optional features, is designed to appeal to both standard and compact pickup buyers.

Dakota features include: three-person cab, passenger car fit and finish, trailer tow capacity of up to 5,500 pounds, state-of-the-art corrosion protection, new five speed manual overdrive transmission, 6.5-and 8-foot cargo boxes, optional 3.9L V-6 engine, rack and pinion steering–a truck first, variable-rate, load-sensing proportioning brake valve–unique for a domestic pickup, and computer selected coil spring front suspension.

The new Dakota 4x4 combines the versatility, efficiency, ride and handling ease of a small truck with the ruggedness, load capacity, and three-across seating of a large pickup.

Dakota 4x4 offers a maximum 2,000 pound payload on either a 111.9-inch wheelbase with a 6.5-foot box or a 123.9-inch wheel base with an eight-foot box. Base payload is 1,450 pounds.

The new 3.9 liter V-6 engine is the standard workhorse that punches out 125 horsepower at 4,000 rpm and produces peak torque of 195 lb-ft at 2,000 rpm.

An all-new five-speed overdrive manual transmission, designed especially for truck use, is standard on the 3.9 liter engine. A three speed automatic transmission is optional.

Three trim levels will be available–Dakota, Dakota SE, and Dakota LE.

Dakota 4x4 offers virtually all of the standard and optional equipment features available on the Dakota two-wheel drive model.

Dakota offers three payload packages, from 1,250 to 2,550 pounds, and can be equipped to pull trailers up to 5,500 pounds.

Farm Industry

several positive developments — lower energy, fertilizer and interest costs, in particular — contributing to "more of the same" in 1987, according to Nicholas C. Babson, chairman and president, Babson Bros. Co., a dairy equipment manufacturer. "Unit volumes of equipment sales continued to drop in 1986 below the year earlier levels. I see nothing on the horizon that will cause a rapid turnaround of this trend." He predicted a "no growth" year for dairy equipment in 1987.

Carl E. McNair, president of Hart-Carter Co., sounded a more optimistic note, predicting the possibility of slightly increased sales for 1987. "We perceive the farmer is more comfortable with the ability to repay new debt because of lower interest, lower debt load, farm legislation, and farm income realized in 1986. As we reenter the comfort level for risk that farmers retreated to the last six years, sales will improve. We believe reentry is possible in 1987."

Firestone To Supply Tires For Deere

AKRON, Ohio — The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company has been selected as the sole supplier of farm tires for John Deere's new 7722 Hillside Combine.

Firestone will supply its 35.5L-32 All Non-Skid (ANS) R-3 bias farm tire, featuring 16-ply rated twin bead construction and button-shaped tread elements for this specific application.

The new 7722 Hillside Combine, the largest model in Deere's line, was designed to handle grades up to 45 percent. The All Non-Skid tire's R-3 construction is critical for this machine's requirements, providing excellent side hill capability and side slip resistance.

The All Non-Skid tire was designed for service in the northwest region of the United States where there is finely powdered volcanic ash soil and high flotation is needed.

Firestone will provide ANS farm tires in size 35.5L-32 on the newer, larger, hillside combines, replacing the 30.5L-32 size tire for this application on smaller combines.

Bill Scranton speaks out on agriculture

"I'll give marketing top priority"

I am convinced we can dramatically improve the income picture for Pennsylvania agriculture . . . if we do the right marketing job.

And why not. We have the production know how. And the consumers. Twelve million in Pennsylvania. Sixty more million nearby.

Big dollars can be made with direct marketing, short hauls and farm products tailored to consumer needs.

As governor, I'll help Pennsylvania farmers spot consumer trends and product needs. I'll give marketing top priority. I want results.

Certainly, opportunities are here.

In central Pennsylvania some corn chip companies pay premiums for local field corn. More state firms might if we work out the kinks.

An astonishing 99% of the lettuce consumed in Pennsylvania is produced elsewhere. $263,000,000 worth. And local buyers charge consumers $3000-$5000 per truckload for shipping costs alone. Research could turn that around.

Lambs can return $600 an acre in today's market. Yet we produce only 11% of what Pennsylvanians consume. We also produce only 24% of the pork, 27% of the beef, 47% of the broilers, 37% of the potatoes, 65% of the turkeys and 68% of the peaches. All growth commodities with the right marketing moves.

While Pennsylvania dairymen were receiving 11.6 cents a pound in September for Class II milk, Pennsylvania consumers were paying $7.29 a pound for imported Brie cheese from France and $3.69 a pound for Havarti cheese from Denmark. Shouldn't we be making specialty cheeses here in Pennsylvania?

Bill Scranton at our ag picnic. He'll get the job done.

The list goes on. Trendy Philadelphia restaurants pay $2.50 a pound for imported French beans. New York City restaurants pay $2 a pound for Belgium yellow peppers. We can grow both.

In 1984, when Lancaster county farmers were feeding surplus pumpkins to hogs, buyers in western Pennsylvania couldn't find enough. A computer network will put buyers and producers together the same day in my administration.

A fast food restaurant in York buys 500 pounds of onions a week. One drawback. It wants them diced. Does this suggest a high tech service firm or co-op for the restaurant trade?

You can count on this — my administration will back ag marketing every step of the way.

If a service or processing firm is recommended, we'll guarantee loans or provide low interest loans ourselves to get the project off the ground.

If research is called for, it'll get first priority.

If production is needed, the technical assistance will be there.

My administration also will help roadside farm markets build or expand . . . showcase Pennsylvania food products for foreign buyers . . . and step up research on new crops, new food products and new industrial uses.

You asked for action on marketing. And you're going to get it from my administration. That's a promise.

value lets you step up to quality and productivity!

The HUSTLER 262 is a compact, out-front mower. Its powerful 18 hp engine can do a full day's work and the 60 inch 3-way deck, combined with HUSTLER maneuverability, means high productivity, too. The agile 262 has all the "HUSTLER Tough," commercial-quality features, including dual-hydrostatic direct-drive, true zero-degree radius turning, and the easy maneuverability of one-hand twin-lever steering. Its optional 16 bushel BAC-VAC™ makes it easy to do a neat, clean job.

The HUSTLER 262 has attachments that keep it working year 'round. Coulter type edger and BAC-VAC™ make it easy to do neat work in the summer. And, in the winter, you'll make good use of its optional 60 inch dozer blade, 60 inch V-blade or utility scoop attachments.

Re-elect Senator Arlen Specter

Arlen Specter grew up in a small town in Kansas and worked on a farm as a teenager. Now, after living in Pennsylvania almost 40 years, his early experience made him sensitive to the needs of Pennsylvania farmers.

As a member of the key Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture, Senator Specter is the only member of the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation with an ongoing role in farm policy and rural development. His accomplishments on behalf of farmers and his frequent visits to farms in many counties of the state demonstrate his strong committment to maintaining and improving Pennsylvania agriculture.

 Secured $50 million in compensation for Pennsylvania poultry farmers hit by severe financial losses during the devastating avian influenza crisis of 1983-84.

 Instrumental in obtaining U.S.D.A. funding for a proposal to establish the Agricultural Science and Industry Facility at Penn State College of Agriculture.

 Defended interests of Pennsylvania dairy farmers as active participant in Senate debate on 1985 Farm Bill.

 Adamantly opposed amendments that would have dramatically cut the dairy price support.

 Strong proponent of soil conservation programs, farmland protection and prompt payment statutes to safeguard the financial interests of farmers.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Now is a good time to test your fields. There is generally enough moisture in the ground at this time of the year to make soil sampling fairly easy. Corn silage is harvested. Hay crop fields are going or are already dormant. Fall grains and/or cover crops are planted and up. Finally there is still time to apply lime before winter freeze up in most of the state. Even though soil testing has increased in cost in the past few years, it is still one of the great bargains you have as a farmer. Good use of a soil testing program can save you more fertilizer dollars than it will ever cost for the testing.

While you are out there collecting those samples, check out the weed situation so you can do a better job of pinpointing your weed control needs for next year. Jot the weed problem down on the side of your sample bag or carry a pocket notebook with you to write down observations.

LIME

Lime is the "great equalizer." It can correct a lot of management mistakes by making weed control materials more effective, releasing soil nutrients, and providing nutrients of its own. Recently, I read a brief report by PSU Agronomist Doug Beegle in the "Agronomy Gleanings" about lime. The main purpose of his report was to discuss the importance of lime quality and the establishment of uniform liming material specs. There is nothing earthshattering in the report and there is nothing in it you can not read elsewhere. However, it is a good synopsis on lime and might be something you could use as a farmer to get a better understanding on the use of lime. If you are interested in reading it, I'm sure your county agent would be happy to give you a copy of the report.

Using Manure

There is a new ST 10 out. Those of you who regularly soil test have probably made extensive use of the old ST 10. There are some revised tables on the value of manure in this leaflet. Of particular interest would be the rapid loss of nitrogen if manure is left on the ground for various periods of time before incorporation. For example, did you realize that manure applied to the ground then incorporated a mere four days later loses about half of its available nitrogen? That means that for an average 20-ton application of cow manure the loss would be 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre. If nitrogen was worth 15 cents per pound, that would be a $6 loss per acre.

You should make use of the tables from the ST 10 when you are calculating fertilizer needs from your soil test reports. It only makes good economic sense to not spend money on fertilizer you do not need. In addition, excessive use of fertilizer and/or manure can cause water pollution, including your own wells and streams.

If you would like more accurate manure values for your own manure you can get a manure test kit from your county agent.

Crop Records

While we are on agronomy and crops, do not forget to keep some crop records. Records of the amount of manure applied to a particular field could help you do a more uniform job of spreading manure nutrients in the future. In addition, those records can provide you with a history of the requirements and performance of your fields. Crop and field records can help you make rotation decisions, weed control decisions, crop type and even variety decisions, and be valuable if you are interested in an accurate "Farm Analysis." I usually take for granted that anyone who reads my column and wants to improve spendable income is also interested in a usable "Farm Analysis."

It is easiest to keep the crop records if you are in a Crop

Management Association. However, there are a number of farmers who do keep records on their own. Some counties make crop record sheets available to farmers interested in keeping their own records. There are even a few commercial operations around who help their clients keep partial records. To be usable, the records do not have to be very elaborate. Only keep the records that you will use. Basic crop records should probably include an estimate of yield, such as loads of silage, bales of hay or loads of grain. They should include costs for fertilizer, lime, seed and chemicals. Other valuable inputs would be the results of soil tests, type of crop planted, manure applied, and type of pesticide applied.

Some farmers feel that they can not take the time to weigh each load of a crop to determine the yield. I would probably agree with them. Here is what one farmer does. He records each load as it is put into storage. Then he measures the total amount that went into storage and divides by the number of loads to get a tons per load value. Silos that are filled and fed, then refilled, can be somewhat of a problem, but the problem can be surmounted if you really want the information. The farmer I am referring to simply puts a mark on the silo where the loading starts and stops (waiting 2 weeks after filling for settling). This is done each time the silo is filled. The method is not completely accurate, but it is workable and gives information that is better than nothing.

Another farmer has a different method. He has relatively easy access to a scale. He weighs wagons periodically. Again, he keeps a record of the number of loads. He does a periodic check on his figures by also measuring the filled storage to see how accurate his wagon load estimates are. You may have a different way to handle the problem. The only answer I do not want is that you do nothing.

ASC Committee Elections Coming Up

A list of the names of all known eligible persons to receive ballots in the upcoming annual ASC committee election soon will be available in the county ASCS office, reports Donald E. Lutz, chairman of the Berks County ASC committee. Farmers began nominating candidates for the ASC election on October 17.

ASCS, an agency of the US Department of Agriculture, is responsible for farm program administration. On the local level, ASCS operates under a farmer-elected committee system. This year's elections will be by mail ballot between Nov. 20 and Dec. 1. Voters may also get ballots at the county ASCS office.

Anyone who meets the following requirements is eligible to vote in these farmer committee elections: any individual of legal voting age with an interest in a farm as owner, operator, tenant, or sharecropper who is eligible to participate in any ASCS program.

Several general provisions relate to ASCS voter eligibility. A wife who operates a farm with her husband can vote if her name is on the deed of conveyance. Any person under legal voting age can vote if he or she runs a farm, and a legal guardian who runs a farm for a child can vote for the child. No person can be denied the right to vote because of race, sex, age, color, religion, handicap or national origin.

A person may cast a ballot in any county in which he or she is an eligible ASC voter, but he or she cannot vote in more than one community. If an eligible voter has separate farm interests in more than one community in the same county, special care will be taken to see that only one ballot is issued to that voter.

Dairy Product of the Month.

New! From Purina Mills, Inc.

Wake up your dairy herd with Purina® Maxi-Tech® Complete dairy feed!

Brand

Help your cows reach maximum production while maintaining body condition and butterfat levels. That's the Maxi-Tech difference.

Getting the most out of your cows, especially top producing ones, used to mean giving up one of two things: either butterfat levels dropped as production increased, or cows depleted internal energy stores and lost condition and ability to quickly breed back.

Now Purina Mills introduces a super high-energy, palatable complete dairy feed designed for producers with excellent management skills, high production goals and high profit expectations. New Purina® Maxi-Tech® brand Complete dairy feed makes the most of a dairy herd's capability by increasing milk production during early lactation, while increasing persistency. Maxi-Tech's unique formulation means milk production and butterfat levels move up together.

New Maxi-Tech Complete contains a nutritional balance of energy, protein, vitamins and minerals. Cows maintain body weight and condition, for better health and breeding.

And its palatability whets the appetite of top producing cows to help them reach new production goals.

When you want the most out of your cows, ask for Purina Maxi-Tech Complete dairy feed, exclusively from Purina Mills, Inc. See what the Maxi-Tech difference can do for you!
